Japan's Opportunity.
Hoover in Indiana.
The Fabulous Toad.
31 German Parties.
— By Arthur Brisbane —

CHINA AND JAPAN are at war, as much as a nation without a head, like China, can war with another.

China, murdering a few Japanese, gave Japan an opportunity to straighten out various matters, regardless of the League of Nations.

A war, big or little, can be useful, for it enables you to eliminate, with dignity, a decent regard for the opinions of mankind. "Can't you see I'm insulted?" asks the aggressive nation.

Poor harassed China may, in the end, be better off for the Japanese complication. It might arouse a sense of nationality among the Chinese and end civil war.

In any case, Washington, please remember it is not our war. We did not start it.

Watson counted more votes than Hoover in Indiana. That means nothing to Watson. The question is: "What, if anything, does it mean to Hoover?"

High finance, gleeful, or trying to be, says: "Hoover is eliminated. He gets big votes in cities, but farmers will not vote for him."

Poor comfort. Some farmers prefer other candidates and will not vote for Hoover at the primaries. But will those Republican farmers, when Hoover is nominated, refuse to vote for him, and vote for a Democrat? They will NOT. And politicians know it.

Gentlemen that give odds on election betting should remember that, in reality, the vote in Indiana was a remarkable victory for Hoover. He showed extraordinary strength against a hostile machine more powerful than Tammany Hall.

The New York Republican machine, not strong, unless Democrats, for their own reasons, give it a hand, will study the Indiana returns thoughtfully. They do not want Hoover, but they also do not want to be beaten. In Hoover they have a fighter that wins, something they can't do usually. They cannot afford to disregard that fact.

A horned toad, known to newspaper readers as Rip Van Winkle, is supposed to have lived more than 30 years in a cornerstone without air, water or food.

The toad has been seen by many, including the President. Some believe the yarn. The President has not committed himself. When the toad was placed on the President's desk neither said a word.

Now the toad's owner heightens interest, saying that in his dark, airless cornerstone the toad sat next to a Bible, and that noble book enabled him to hold out. Many will believe that. It is a credulous human race.

In a few days Germany will elect a new Reichstag, and 31 different parties will fight for the seats. These include two Catholic, two Socialist, two Nationalist, three Communistic and three anti-Semitic parties.

In America we have only two parties that count, and our people can hardly keep track of them. Not ten in a hundred could tell what either wants or plans.

ATTACK ON MA-IN-LAW WHITNEY

Laconia, N. H., May 11—Harold C. Whitney of Boston, who accuses his society wife of misconduct with Lawrence Higgins, wealthy young clubman and member of the diplomatic service, finished presenting his divorce evidences today in Superior Court and Mrs. Frances Clark Whitney immediately launched her own fight for a divorce.

A surprise was sprung by Judge Joseph S. Mathews shortly before this change in the laga lwarfare, when he said he was not considering giving custody of the two Whitney children to their grandmother, Mrs. Minetta Whitney, of Watertown, Mass.

Opposing attorneys were engaged in exchange of caustic remarks, bearing on such custody, as to

Goodwin Is Safety Editor of American

Frank A. Goodwin, who for eight years served as registrar of motor vehicles for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, has joined the editorial staff of the Boston Evening American.

He has been appointed Highway Safety Editor. He will conduct the paper's safety drive, which has won the sympathy and support of readers all over New England. He will start his active newspaper duties today.

Goodwin graciously consented to devote a considerable portion of his time to a safety campaign that gives promise of being the most effective ever waged in this section of the country.

In his letter of acceptance, Goodwin says:

"Boston Evening American,
"Boston, Mass.
"Gentlemen:—

"It is with great pleasure that I accept the assignment as Highway Safety Editor of the Boston Evening American.

"When we realize that 700 persons are killed and 30,000 injured annually on our highways by motor vehicles, one cannot refuse to do anything within his power to help lessen this needless slaughter.

"It is deplorable that each year about 200 little children have their lives snuffed out and 7000 are seriously injured on our highways.

OWNER TELLS STORY TO FOLEY AFTER HUB GANG HAS SHAKEN HIM DOWN

A broken-spirited man, bootlegger and proprietor of a South End hotel, virtually penniless after he had paid $65,000 for "protection," real and mythical, threw up his hands in despair when a final demand for money was made on him, and said: "I've been doing nothing but working for coppers and bagmen. Now I'm going to turn copper myself and make a holler."

This dramatic scene, staged in the hotel before two of the money-hungry "bagmen," marked the opening of Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley's campaign against the graft ring, which climaxes tomorrow when the grand jury hears the evidence against six men charged with extortion from the hotel man.

Originally there were four involved in the ring, but additional evidence brought to the district-attorney's office in answer to his appeal to bootleggers, proprietors of gambling dens and disorderly houses to bring their information to him, mounted the pile to six, the newcomers being a policeman attached

HUB MOTHER WINS FIGHT OVER $125,000 FORTUNE

The fight for a fortune of $125,000, which Mrs. Anna Griffiths of Milton, Massachusetts ave., waged for her children, is won.

Little Virginia, 10, and Georgianna, 8, children of Mrs. Griffiths, will receive the income from the estate of the grandmother until they are 21 and then the principal will be divided between them.

This trust arrangement, with the mother acting as guardian and administrator, begins July 19, at which time the monthly interest payments will commence arriving at the Griffiths' home, to cheer the little school children and their mother.

Checks mean cheer in the household because Mrs Griffiths, deserted by her husband in Rochester, N. Y., seven years ago, struggled hard to support her family from that time on and only kept the family together by arduous work.

JAPS RENEW BATTLE IN CHINESE CITY; 500 SLAIN

Tokio, May 10—Japanese troops today resumed battle with Chinese Nationalists at Tsinan in an attempt to disarm and disperse them.

It was said in government circles that Japan would neither ask nor accept mediation in the affair. A full division of troops will be embarked this week at Nagoya for service in the Chinese field.

Four Japanese were killed and 20 wounded when troops under Gen. Fetoyma encountered a powerful force of Chinese under Gen. Chen Tsun. The Chinese casualties were heavy.

Five hundred Chinese were slain in the opening bombardment which followed the Japanese ultimatum ordering all Nationalists from the

AL SMITH'S RACE COST $92,090; GIFTS $103,301

New York, May 10—Facing the United States Senate campaign inquisitors for half an hour today, Governor Alfred E. Smith testified that he knew nothing about the financing of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

His campaign manager, George R. Van Namee, told the Senators that $103,310 had been received by the New York organization for the Governor and $92,090 had been expended.

William F. Kenny, a New York paving and gas main contractor, put up $70,000 of the total receipts, Van Namee said, $20,000 in outright gifts, and $50,000 in loans which are yet to be paid.

The heaviest expenditure was made in California, where Governor Smith recently ran far ahead of Senators Reed of Missouri and Walsh of Montana in the Democratic presidential preference primary. A total of $41,500 was sent into that State, of which $3500 was returned.

"I haven't done a single thing about the campaign given in my

CLASH ON READING'S RECEIPT FOR $25,000

A sharp clash between defense counsel and the legislative committee over the receipt, now missing, which Attorney-General Reading testified he gave for his $25,000 Decimo Club retainer, featured today's investigation into the attorney-general's conduct.

Under direct examination of Attorney Anderson, Raymond B. McGee had testified that he had seen the receipt in the files of the Decimo Club, of which he is secretary, but that it could not now be found.

Representative James, chairman of the investigating committee, interrupted the examination to inquire whether it was the hope of the defense counsel that the committee would infer Hugh R. Monjar, deposed Decimo president, had removed the receipt.

"If you want to, from the evidence," Atty. Anderson replied.

"We will need more evidence to to police headquarters, and a runner for a well-known lawyer.

UNDERWORLD STIRRED UP

The original four included a lawyer, who formerly held a high federal position; a stock broker; an agent of a local uplift society and a professional bondsman.

The inclusion of the lawyer's runner and the policemen has caused a furor in Boston's underworld, as well as in the police department, for Dist. Atty. Foley had previously announced that the police had been given a clean bill of health in his investigation.

The man referred to yesterday as the second Hub lawyer today waited for friends at the district-attorney's office in the hope that they could clear him of the charge of "fixing" for two women prisoners at Sherborn. He admitted today that he was but an "office manager" for a law firm and not a member of the bar.

"There are certain persons who can prove I had nothing to do with promising revocation of sentence," he said. "They are vitally interested themselves.

U. S. AGENT APPEARS.

"A certain person received $5000 on the promise before our office entered as their clients," he charged. "Also a public official approached the sentencing judge with a view to revocation. It was denied.

"I made three visits to the prison, but it was only in connection with an appeal to the parole board to transfer them to another State institution."

He waited for hours today for the exonerating friends to appear.

A stir was caused among the corridor hangers-on when Owen J. McKenna, special U. S. treasury agent appeared and spent three hours outside Foley's office. Police and state officials talked earnestly with him at intervals.

Asked by newspapermen if he were working on the graft investigation, he said, "I have nothing to say. I'm here and that's all so far." He spent the whole morning without seeing the district attorney.

The district attorney had originally intended to bring before the grand jury at the present time only the case of the South End proprietor and those alleged to have "shaken him down," but with the policemen being drawn into the grand jury proceedings the underworld is convinced that a hand grenade is to burst in the grand jury chamber, and the details of a "graft racket" totalling millions of dollars are to be aired.

One alleged member of the graft ring has left Boston, and agents of the district attorney's office and the police are seeking him today.

He had had a long conferences with the district attorney, and admitted, it is understood, the truth of much of the evidence with which he was confronted. He had promised to be in court yesterday, knowing full well that Dist.-Atty. Foley intended to have him arrested on his appearance.

But he failed to appear, could not be found at his home, office or usual haunts, and accordingly he is being sought today with officers armed with warrants for his arrest.

He is the stock broker member of the alleged ring.

Whether or not he is captured, the evidence against him and his alleged brothers in graft will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow by Dist. Atty. Foley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle.

Hardly had the word gone forth from the district attorney's office that one policeman was involved in the charges than two policemen assigned to the district attorney's office were called "up on the carpet" at police headquarters.

In addition to the two policemen, six men and two women visited police headquarters and turned over to Commissioner Wilson information having to do with the operations of the ring.

The fact that two women were among the informants stresses the fact that the district-attorney is investigating the charges that the keepers of disorderly houses also paid for "protection," as well as the bootleggers and proprietors of gambling dens.

Dist.-Atty. Foley said he had received from the police commissioner none of the information that may have been turned over by the men and women, adding, however, that the police department had given him much information aiding him in his probe, and that the commissioner would probably give his new information to him later if he considers it of sufficient importance.

Dist. Atty. Foley was intensely interested in the report, published exclusively in the Boston Evening American, that one policeman, who has been living in a style hardly commensurate with his salary, had recently come into possession of a race horse formerly owned by a Boston bootlegger.

NO TIPS OVERLOOKED

The district-attorney has fearful obstacles before him in his campaign to rid the city of proprietors of illicit dives and those who prey on such proprietors, according to the State police and the federal agents who have been working for months on their own individual probes in Boston.

Land, Gen. Nobile replied: "We shall see."

Copenhagen, May 10—Messages from Kings Bay to the newspaper Politiken say that six Italian Alpine hunters who had planned to accompany Gen. Nobile on his North Pole flight left aboard the Hobby for the Rossbund after a severe attack of "cold feet."

Having experienced a couple of weeks of Arctic weather and seen and felt the polar ice, they decided the weather was not the same as they were accustomed to in the Alps. They said they felt if they once came down in the barren waters at the North Pole they would never regain the airship. Therefore, they requested that they be sent back to Italy.

that any statement that he would discuss in the case was a "lie."

New York, May 10—The Teapot Dome case threatens to rip wide open the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, one of the largest and most profitable businesses in the world.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., demands the resignation of Col. Robert W. Stewart, one of the big figures in the Teapot Dome probe, as chairman of the board of directors. Stewart has refused to resign and has challenged Rockefeller to a test of strength before the stockholders.

Stewart will go on trial in Washington May 21 on the Senate contempt charges growing out of his refusal, on his first appearance before the oil committee, to tell whether he had discussed Continental profits with Sinclair or whether he knew anyone who received any of the Liberty bonds.

It was after this appearance that Mr. Rockefeller, testifying before the committee, expressed his "bitter" disappointment over Stewart's failure to furnish his Inquisitors with all the facts in his possession and his readiness to withdraw his support from the management of any company "that no longer justifies the confidence that has been put in it."

Rockefeller stated that Stewart had told him that if anything developed in the Teapot Dome suit that would cause Rockefeller to lose confidence in him he would resign but he changed his attitude when asked to go.

Despite the fact that Rockefeller is reputed to be the head of the company he votes personally but 15 per cent of the stock. However, he will probably be given the vote on the stock owned by the Rockefeller Foundation, amounting to 460,750 shares, and also the 500,000 shares controlled by his sisters. These, with his own 402,500 shares, give him votes on 2,363,250 shares.

In addition there are other big stockholders who are associated in business with the Rockefellers who may vote with him.

draw such an inference," was James' retort. "I wouldn't be justified in drawing such an inference from what has already gone in, and I don't think any of the committee would, either."

Corroborative testimony that Monjar had threatened to "get" Reading was given by McGee, Webster and himself were included in the threat, McGee testified.

Monjar seemed "anxious to disgorge," McGee testified regarding the attitude of the former Decimo head on the occasion when he signed the agreement placing some $400,000 worth of stocks, bonds and checks in escrow pending an audit of the club's accounts. He even appeared willing to sign notes for $100,000 indebtedness after the audit was made, McGee said, and did not become disgruntled until asked to obtain and endorse notes from the men to whom he had loaned money.

The changes Hugh B. Monjar made in those changes recommended for the Decimo constitution by Reading were testified to by McGee. Reading told a group of delegates Monjar's changes were designed to rob them of their convention rights, according to Moe, and said Monjar had borrowed $100,000 from the club funds and, in his opinion, Monjar's contract calling for $5 of every $20 initiation fee was illegal because it had never been ratified by the members.

At the November 13 meeting, nothing was said about prosecution, McGee testified. Reading had been working under his original retainer, but then the board considered the matter of empowering him further because he had performed "such signal service," and not at Reading's suggestion.

own State," Smith told Senator Steiwer, chairman. "I promised the people of New York when I was inaugurated that I would not go out of the State but would give my time to the affairs of the State. And, believe me, that takes every minute of my time."

"Have you any understanding or interlocking agreement with any other candidate?" asked Senator Bratton, Democrat.

"Not that I know anything about," Smith replied.

"Have you contributed any money to the New York group?" asked Chairman Steiwer after he had placed the New York Governor under oath.

"No, sir," Smith replied.

"Am I right in assuming that you have made no promise of patronage?" Steiwer pursued.

"Absolutely none."

Chairman Steiwer questioned Smith about his suite in the Hotel Biltmore.

"Is the Biltmore owned by the New York Central railroad?"

"I don't know. The property is in the hands of the railroad, but the hotel management is in the hands of Mr. Bowman."

"Do you know if your rent is provided free by the New York Central Railroad Company?"

(Senator Steiwer apologised for this line of questioning, but said the information was contained in an anonymous letter to the committee.)

"I don't know," Smith replied sharply. "I don't think the New York Central owns the hotel. I think Mr. Bowman does."

"So far as financial assistance or contributions to your campaign are concerned, you know nothing about them?" McMaster pursued.

"Nothing whatever. I haven't received any contribution myself from anyone," Smith said, adding that he had received no report from any of his friends as to campaign expenditures.

George R. Van Namee testified that the total receipts for the New York Smith organization were $103,-301 and expenditures had been $97,-090.28.

$750 SENT TO McGLUE

Other contributions included: Herbert Lehman, $10,000; William Todd, $50,000; Robert F. Dowling, $2500; George Gordon Battle, $1000; Howard Cullman, $2500; James W. Listing expenditures by the New York Smith organization, Van Namee said $41,500 had been sent to Justus H. Wardell at San Francisco, one of the founders of the Smith-for-President movement in California.

Five thousand dollars went to the Democratic publicity bureau, Van Namee added. Other expenditures included:

REMICK SENT GIRL 'BUSHEL OF KISSES'

Worcester, May 10—John P. Remick, 64-year-old defendant in the $50,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Mary A. Hunt, 37-year-old actress, showed signs of collapse on the witness stand today and Judge Philip J. O'Connell declared a recess.

The wealthy Milford antique dealer quailed under a searching cross-examination which included the reading of his fervid epistles to the showgirl, and admitted when asked why he wrote "a bushel of kisses," that "there's no fool like an old fool."

Atty. Charles F. Campbell, for the plaintiff, began his cross-examination by reading from one of Remick's letters the statement that he "could arrange anything at any time."

"What did you mean by that?" asked the lawyer. "I don't recall exactly, but I think I referred to a dinner," the witness replied.

"I hope everything is all right," Attorney Campbell read. "What did you mean by that?" "I don't recall," Remick replied.

RUNAWAY BOY IS HAPPY AGAIN WITH HIS DOG

The wandering call of spring and sites of the city slicker had no more appeal to 14-year-old Eugene Clapp of Brookline as he hugged his canine pal today.

Eugene was the boy that upset the household of George A. Clapp, his father, worried his mother to distraction and caused no little concern to the faculty of Choate Preparatory School, Wallingford, Ct., from which he disappeared for a look at New York.

The city was a disappointment, especially in the fact that a slicker relieved him of his monetary stock. His feet bruised and then balked at the prospect of walking back. In fact, the trip was a "flop" when William F. Lyons found him at Meriden, Ct., a tried but other boy.

Today it was hard to determine who was most joyful—the parents, Eugene or his speechless pal.

ferred to?" asked the lawyer. "I don't recall," said Remick. "I got so many."

Q.—Did you get a thrill out of calling on Miss Hunt? A.—Not seriously.

Q.—You weren't serious with this girl? A.—Only to a certain extent.

Q.—Did you enjoy visiting her? A.—I only visited her twice.

Q.—Did the thought of your visits to Mae Hunt give you a thrill? A.—No, sir.

HE WAS "ALL ALONE."

Q.—"Oh, how I wish were here tonight." What did you mean by that? A.—I probably meant I wished she were at the Opera House.

Q.—Were there antiques at the Opera House at that time? A.—No.

Q.—"I know you would enjoy seeing antiques." If there were no antiques what did you mean? A.—Maybe I meant antiques in my home.

Q.—"They are all at the pictures and I am here alone." Whatdid you mean by this? A.—I don't remember.

Q. Why did you write "Mrs." in quotations? A. There wasn't any room on that line to put Remick after Mrs.

Q. "I do dearly wish I had a sweet little redhead to keep house for me." Did you mean that? A. No.

Q. "Oh, how nice it is my little sweetie." Who was your sweetie? A. Maybe I meant my wife.

Q. Your wife or Miss Hunt? A. I can't recollect.

Q. "I can drive to So. Framingham and meet any train and not a soul in the world will know?" Who were you going to meet? A. I can't exactly say.

Q. Was it Miss Hunt you met? A. It might have been some other girl.

Q. Who was it? A. That is beyond me to say.

Blacklisted Diners Would Call D. A. R. "Stepdaughters"

New York, May 10 (INS)—The D. A. R. today was "on probation" as a result of the "blacklist dinner" here.

Approximately 1000 persons, many of whom have been blacklisted as speakers by the D. A. R. because of "Radicalism" attended and a mock trial for the organization was staged with Dr. Norman Thomas as "judge."

"Judge" Thomas announced the charters of the D. A. R. would not be revoked immediately. But if the organization does not return to the principles on which it was founded within six months the name will be changed to "Stepdaughters of the American Revolution," Dr. Thomas said.

BREMEN FLIERS HOP OFF FOR CLEVELAND

Philadelphia, May 10 (INS)—The three members of the transatlantic plane Bremen crew took off here today in their monoplane F-13 shortly after 9 o'clock for Cleveland on the second leg of their American tour.

The plane got away without mishap heading northwest as Baron von Huenefeld, Capt. Herman Koehl and Maj. James Fitzmaurice waved farewell to the small crowd that had gathered at the Philadelphia navy yard's airport to see them off.

They will spend an hour or two in Cleveland and then fly to Chicago. They are due in the latter city early this evening.

Arena Exercises for Fliers Are Postponed

Following a telegram from Baron von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl and Major Fitzmaurice of the Bremen, the Boston program in their honor was changed in one particular, today. The fliers announced they could not reach this city by air until 4 p. m. Friday, May 18, and asked that public events scheduled for that night be put over until Saturday. As a result, the Arena exercises, planned for Friday night, have been postponed until Saturday night.

The only feature for Friday will be the presentation of the State medals at the Boston Airport, and the escort of honor from the airport to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Lo, Here's Education That Surely Pays!

National Electric Light Association check made out: "Pay to the order of Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration—$10,000."

HARVARD

HERE is one of the checks going to make up the $30,000 subsidy which is being paid annually to the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration by the National Electric Light Association, chief propaganda organization of the electric power interests.

The purpose of the subsidy, which goes to a "research staff in public utility management," is, as the National Electric Light Association records show, "to produce an adequate textbook on public utility relations," which "would better appear under academic auspices than as a publication of this association," also "it is obvious that such literature, bearing the imprint of Harvard University, would be quite generally adopted by other institutions."

National Electric Light Association check made out: "Pay to the order of Walter Dill Scott, Northwestern University—$12,500."

NORTHWESTERN

HERE is a check to the president of Northwestern, half the annual subsidy of $25,000 to the university by the National Electric Light Association. This payment is to help support Prof. Richard T. Ely's institute for research in land and public utility economics, which specializes in collecting arguments against Government operation of public utilities. On Feb. 16, 1928, the public policy committee of the National Electric Light Association received a letter from Dr. Ely "requesting financial support from the National Electric Light Association for a study into municipal ownership activities in California," where the Los Angeles public-owned electric light system is under constant attack by the National Electric Light Association.

The public utility mentors of the university courses keep a careful eye on the new books being written in their respective territories. They supervise the contents of such books and, if they are wholly satisfactory, help in marketing them with the assistance of the nation-wide network of public utility organizations. Their method of gently guiding a professor to say what he should say in his book is clearly set forth in the following letter, written at Lincoln, Neb., on Aug. 11, 1923, by Horace M. Davis, secretary-treasurer of the National Electric Light Association, addressed to E. M. Lytle, of the Illinois State committee.

"One of our State university professors, Kirchman, of the College of Business Administration, is writing a work under contract with the Shaw Publishing Company on investment. He is now ready for a chapter on public utilities and came to see me. We spent a couple of hours today that I was able to furnish him with some literature that he considers pat."

KNAPP JUROR IS CITED TO COURT

Albany, N. Y., May 10 (AP)—An order directing David Main, a member of the Knapp jury, to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court was issued by Supreme Court Justice Staley today. The order is returnable before Supreme Court Justice Callaghan in court here at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The action of the court was based on an allegation that Main during the deliberations of the jurors used arguments based upon statements by Dist. Atty. Charles J. Herrick, which were not in evidence at the trial of the former Secretary of State for grand larceny of state census funds.

The resolve calls for an appropriation of $50,000 to make the investigation, of which one-half would be assessed on Boston in the State tax assessment.

FRANK CARMAN ROBBED OF $5000 IN JEWELS

New York, May 10 (AP)—The apartment of Frank B. Carman, divorced husband of Mrs. Irene Schelikopf, who was robbed of $500,000 in gems while attending a New Year's Eve party in 1922, at which Carman was host, was entered last night and a strong box holding $5000 in gems was taken.

Carman is in Providence, R. I., on business and was informed of the theft by Peter Gaudette, who shares the West Seventy-third st. apartment with him and who discovered the robbery. Gaudette lost several articles of clothing.

SKINNY MEN

Gain pounds of weight and strength in 3 weeks with new YEAST and IRON—or pay nothing

"Gained 10 Pounds"

"I can truthfully say that I never received so much benefit from anything in so short a time. Before I began taking IRONIZED YEAST I was 10 pounds underweight, but now I am back to normal again."—Mr. M. P., Asbury Park, N. J.

Daily the letters pour in telling how Ironized Yeast has put on 5 to 15 pounds of good solid flesh in 3 weeks. Has built up strength in persons, tired people. Has cleared skins of ugly pimples and boils.

What is the Magic in Ironized Yeast?

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured yeast, concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value.

This Yeast is treated with pure, vegetable iron, the same as in spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is ironized in this way is it 100% effective—for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this special formula Ironized Yeast gives you results in half the time required by yeast or iron taken separately.

Don't have a skinny, weak body. Don't go around with an ugly skin. Go to your druggist. Get a handy bottle of Ironized Yeast tablets. Safe for everybody. Easy-to-take.

Try It on "Money Back" Offer

Go today to your druggist. Get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast. If you are not delighted get your money back. If inconvenient to buy from the druggist, send $1.00 direct to the Ironized Yeast Co., Atlanta, Ga., Desk 327-LL.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion, and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having weight increased to normal.

Underweight people lack pep, vitality and charm

REAL coffee too! Kaffee Hag is the finest coffee — minus 97% of the caffeine. But it's so cheering and bracing you could never tell it!

All the quick coffee "kick" remains. It has never come from caffeine anyhow — but from heat and aromatic oils. Caffeine stimulation doesn't even come until two hours after drinking. Thus you don't notice its absence at meal-time. But it may keep you awake hours afterwards.

NURSE SAYS SHE CARED FOR TOTS

whether Mrs. Whitney, Sr., living in Massachusetts, would be within the New Hampshire jurisdiction, when Judge Mathews interrupted.

"No request to grant the elder Mrs. Whitney custody has been made in the papers filed in these divorce suits," he said. "Only the husband and wife, separately, petition for custody."

Cross-examination of Mrs. Minetta Whitney ends abruptly and, with Mrs. Lucy Emma Glidden of Beacon st., Boston, on the stand, counsel for Mrs. Frances Clark Whitney tried to show that life in the Watertown household, where the children now are, was "not as ideal as pictured."

The witness, who was under cross-examination, repainted the picture of ideal conditions she had given while testifying for Whitney, and she declared positively, in answer to other questioning, that she could not recall an occasion when Mrs. Whitney, Sr., "by her cruel tongue," made younger Mrs. Whitney cry.

"Have you yourself ever had to make remarks to you that forced yo uto make an effort to hold back tears?"

"I know Mrs. Whitney, the elder, too well to pay any attention to what she might say," replied Mrs. Glidden.

Col. Stephen S. Jewett, chief counsel for Mrs. Harold Whitney, seemed satisfied at last with that answer, but Atty. Robert T. Bushnell, quickly on his feet, got the witness to add that, at least, there was never any bitter criticism by the elder woman of her son's wife.

Now "ideal conditions" testimony was given by Mrs. Mary Tiernan of Somerville, a trained nurse. She declared that Whitney always spoke to the children of their mother "in excellent terms."

AUTO RIDE

"Once on an auto ride to Lexington he pointed out to them the home of their 'Mummy's' aunt and also the library the aunt, Mrs. Cary, had given the town," testified Mrs. Tiernan.

A dispute of depositions by telephone and telegraph company officials, offered by Whitney to show something about alleged messages between Mrs. Frances Whitney and Lawrence Higgins, led to a conference, but no decision was announced as to their admissibility as evidence.

This was the second conference of the day. The first was at the opening of court, and it was called in secrecy, all attorneys going into the judge's lobby. When this mystery discussion ended, Mrs. Whitney, the elder, took the stand for the close of her cross-examination.

CHILDREN CUSTODY

Mrs. Whitney, Sr., was asked by Col. Jewett if she would move into the jurisdiction of the State of New Hampshire from Massachusetts, should she get custody of the children. He said he wanted to know if New Hampshire would keep control after the decision of its courts was made.

Attorney Bushnell—The legal residence of both parties is New Hampshire. It follows this State is the legal residence of their children. That's all there is to it. If custody goes to the father, the children remain under New Hampshire jurisdiction. Mrs. Whitney, Sr., has placed herself under this jurisdiction by appearing here.

Judge Mathews said he was not considering granting custody to Mrs. Whitney, Sr., because the papers filed in the twin suits made no such request. Only the husband and wife, separately, asked custody, he explained.

The matter was dropped there. Mrs. Whitney, the elder, left the witness stand and Mrs. Lucy Emma Glidden of Beacon st., Boston, who had testified briefly yesterday, took the stand.

Col. Jewett—With regard to the elder Mrs. Whitney, did she ever bring it to your attention that her home life was not in every respect pleasant? A.—No.

HOME LIFE

Q.—Isn't it a fact that the elder Mrs. Whitney's husband neglected his marital duties—as far as you observed?

There was objection from Atty. Bushnell. Col. Jewett said he wished to show the home life of the elder Whitneys, at the home where the children now are, was not so ideal as pictured by testimony.

"I want to show the family life in which the children are now thrown was not such as testified to here," he said.

"If the home life of the elder Mrs. Whitney was such that it made her very nervous and irritable, this supervision is proper and important, in that her son and heir, who has no employment other than taking care of his inherited income, may have decided to bring about such a condition."

Q.—Has this been brought to your attention by Mrs. Whitney—has she ever told you or have you learned by your intimate acquaintance, or have you ever told anybody else, that Mrs. Whitney, Sr., has a very cruel tongue, so that she might make cruel remarks to the younger Mrs. Whitney or to her own son? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Do you recall visiting the Lake Winnipesaukee camp of the Whitneys? A.—Yes.

Q.—Recall a talk with Mrs. Whitney, Sr., in the presence of her daughter-in-law about a birthday present the husband was going to give to the wife? A.—I don't recall it.

Q.—Do you recall that Mrs. Whitney urged her son not to give his wife a birthday present? A.—I do not.

FAILS TO RECALL

Q.—Do you recall that Mrs. Harold Whitney was distressed and cried at that time on account of the conversation with her mother-in-law? A.—I do not recall it.

Q.—Do you recall you made effort to comfort the younger Mrs. Whitney, saying you had to make an effort to keep back tears on account of remarks by the elder Mrs. Whitney? A.—I don't recall.

Q.—Have you ever had any remarks made to you by Mrs. Whitney, Sr., as a result of which you had to make an effort to keep back tears? A.—I understand Mrs. Whitney too well to pay any attention to what she might say.

Col. Jewett—That's all.

Atty. Bushnell—Mrs. Glidden, let me ask you if you ever saw any evidence that the elder Mrs. Whitney attempted to stir up dissension between his son and his wife? A.—No, sir.

Detective Mitchell J. Pellamary was recalled to the stand, to be questioned by Atty. Thomas P. Cheney of Whitney's staff of attorneys. The detective had testified on the opening day of the trial, telling of the "raid" on Mrs. Whitney's suite on November 26, 1927, when she was, according to testimony, found with Lawrence Higgins.

Mrs. Whitney, the younger, had testified he was in charge of the Whitney children in Watertown for a long time thereafter.

Q.—There has been statement about your taking care of the children. What were your duties? A.—I was to guard the children.

Q.—Anything to do with what they ate, wore or did? A.—Nothing at all.

Close examination by Col. Jewett brought the question: "Mr. Pellamary, you have testified here previously, and have been here since the trial opened?" The answer was "Yes."

Q.—You have taken quite an interest haven't you?

It was brought out that the detective, when Whitney's lawyers left the room at recesses, would slip into the seat of one of them and watch papers and documents. Judge Mathews said all this was immaterial.

NURSE ON STAND

The next witness was Mrs. Mary Tiernan, of Somerville, Mass., a trained nurse employed at the Whitney Watertown home in January of this year when Mrs. Whitney, the grandmother, was ill.

"An excellent patient," was her description of Mrs. Whitney. She continued: "I had opportunity to observe the children, too." She outlined the routine of their days, saying the grandmother supervised everything. She added that Harold Whitney spent much time with his children and seemed very devoted.

"On one auto ride we took, Mr. Whitney pointed out to the children the home of their mother's mother in Lexington," she said. "He also called attention to the library presented to the town by the younger Mrs. Whitney's aunt, Mrs. Cary.

"He always referred to his wife in nice terms in speaking to the children, calling her 'Mummy.' He always spoke of her to the children in the very best terms."

Atty. Cheney—Anything to indicate he was trying to influence them against their mother? A.—No.

Q.—While you were there did Mrs. Harold Whitney visit the children? A.—Yes.

Q.—Any indication her husband or mother-in-law were trying to prevent her going there? A.—No.

CALLED MOTHER

Q.—Did you see the children calling up their mother? A.—Many times. This was suggested to them on occasions by their grandmother and father.

Q.—As a trained nurse, do you think the home conditions for the children at Watertown are suitable? A.—I certainly think they have a beautiful home and few children have such an excellent home. They phone calls said by counsel for Whitney to have passed between Mrs. Whitney and Lawrence Higgins.

"LINDY" TAKES HIS UNCLE AND MA ON PLANE FLIGHT

Detroit, May 10 (AP)—Mayor John C. Lodge has made his first airplane flight in a ship piloted by his nephew, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. The mayor expressed a desire to go up in an airplane but said he would wait until Col. Lindbergh returned to Detroit to pilot the plane. Accompanying Mayor Lodge was Mrs. Evangeline L. L. Lindbergh, mother of the flier, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Mayo. The party cruised over the city several hours in a Ford air liner. At the conclusion of the journey Mayor Lodge expressed himself as delighted with the experience.

SAVES HIS SOLE BY PUBLIC SALE

Sole, 24,000 pounds of it, fresh from Long Island sound, will be offered late today or tomorrow from the fishing smack William S. at T wharf to the public at 3 cents a pound.

Sole usually sells at from 10 to 20 cents a pound.

William S. Steele, purser of the smack, decided today to sell the catch direct to the public after he had talked with the State commission on the necessaries of life and after Capt. Hubert Nickerson had found the market glutted and the best offer to be one-fifth of 1 cent a pound.

YES, SUMMER IS COMING

Official assurance of the approach of warm weather was given today with the slow advance eastward of a ave of moderately high temperatures which is now covering the Middle West.

Cloudy skies, however, are predicted hereabouts for the next 24 hours as an offshoot storm sweeps past Massachusetts on a northeastward course from its present location at Nantucket.

SOCIETY EAGERLY AWAITING THE OPENING OF 'TRY OUT' THEATER, MAY 29, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Two Programs, Each Consisting of a Full Length Play and One-Act Curtain Raiser, to Be Offered During Three-Week Season

SHOOT AN ARROW INTO THE AIR—TOWARD WELLESLEY, Newton, Dedham, Dover or thereabouts. Wherever it comes to earth there will be found a prominent suburbanite with a keen and enthusiastic interest in and admiration for Wellesley's current contribution to the higher culture, the "Try-Out" Theater. Tuesday, May 29, marks the grand opening for a spring season of theatricals and other forms of artistic expression, in what was the coach house on the Edward Hastings Wiswall estate, and is now a glorified example of a "little theater" in the most charming rustic environment imaginable.

CERTAIN HIGHLY CULTURED ONES, PARTICULARLY THOSE to whom support of the arts is a fetish, form a superlatively brilliant background for the theater. Mrs. Fiske Warren is one of these; Mrs. Frederick S. Converse another. Others are Mesdames Gamaliel Bradford, Joseph W. Courtney, Henry Lee Higginson, 2d, and Dudley Ranney. In the foreground, holding aloft the torch, so to speak, and striving industriously and without cessation to establish the "Try-Out" Theater firmly in the hearts of the elect, there is a trio of present generation invincibles—Miss Katharine Chapman Warren, Miss Josephine Stranahan and Leighton Rollins.

MANY SIDED, AND MOST INSPIRING AND ASPIRING ARE THE plans of these three, who have the absolute "say-so." Gifted with great good commonsense and having vision way above the amount ordinarily vouchsafed humans, this trio aims to present music and the drama alluringly, in a theater of the intimate sort excellently appointed. May 29 is premier for three weeks of plays. May 29 is the gala occasion launching a series of five Sunday afternoons devoted to music primarily, to tea secondarily. To the countless many "something to do" thus provided for the afternoon and early evening of the Seventh Day is a boon beyond measurement. And to many, likewise, a "little theater" is immensely appealing.

THEATRICALLY, THE PLAN IS TO OFFER TWO PROGRAMS during the three weeks, each to consist of a full length and a one-act play. Musically, the Sundays will be enriched by the appearance of musicians and singers already high up fame's ladder. Miss Edith Bullard and Irving Marston Jackson share the first Sunday's program. Miss Bullard, soprano, hails from Wellesley and is enormously popular, and Mr. Jackson, baritone, is just back in his native country from triumphs abroad, at Cannes and in Paris.

AS FURTHER CONTRIBUTION TO THE ARTISTIC ACHIEVEMENT, there is to be co-incidentally an exhibition of paintings and sculpture. Mrs. Raymond Huntington (Elizabeth Thayer) is arranger-in-chief of this phase of the "Try-Out" Theater's comprehensive plan. A coterie of artists, sixteen or more, those whose names have been scrawled on notable works, will be the exhibitors. The theater is marvelously well adapted to set off so far-reaching a scheme, and even permits of al fresco features since it is so decidedly in a country setting.

EVERYONE OUT WELLESLEY AND NEEDHAM WAY KNOWS that once upon a time the "Try-Out" Theater, now blazing its path to fame and artistic glory, was a building put to less cultured usage. A decade or two or three ago it was the stables and coach house on the Arthur Pope domain. Swanking turnouts were housed there. High steppers champed in roomy stalls. Glittering harness and equine accoutrement reposed on proper pegs. All was as supremely luxurious as splendidly appointed stables could be. Then, the glory of the horse waned. Now comes the glory of grease paint and spotlight in his stead.

MANY, MANY DOLLARS WENT INTO THE CREATION OF THIS building. Fieldstone and shingles without, rich mahogany within. In the carriage room, where now the theater is arranged, an enormous hooded fireplace rears itself. Apartments overhead make perfect dressing rooms, sufficient to house many "stars." Altogether Mr. Rollins could have traveled many a mile and searched high and low and nowhere could he have found a spot and a building so excellently suited to his "Try-Out" Theater purposes. Now it is the possession of Mrs. Edward Hastings Wiswall, and she is returning from a Mediterranean cruise almost at the very moment the lights flare up and the first spring performance at the theater is on.

MARGARET LELAND LUISITA LELAND

The daughters of Mrs. Charles F. Leland are returning from a Mediterranean trip which they did with their mother.

LIKE SO MANY HOMING PIGEONS THE GREAT LINERS COME steaming into port, bringing to native shores ever so many of the gadabouts who have been roving about the earth and into some of the four corners thereof. Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Adams Shaw McKean are listed on the Ile de France list as that new expression of luxuriousness afloat leaves Havre for New York. Two and a half months or so have the McKeans been abroad, and during that time have crossed several frontiers and been in France, Italy, Germany, Holland and England.

POLO PLAYING MR. McKEAN AND ARTISTICALLY IMPORTANT Mrs. McKean arranged their travels so as to be in England for the Grand National at Aintree. Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Paine are coming via the Ile de France, after a number of pleasant weeks, doing a foreign journey principally by motor, their own, taken over for the purpose. The names of Mrs. Charles F. Leland and her two attractive daughters, Miss Margaret C. Leland and Miss Luisita Leland, appear on the passenger list as in the homeward-bound set.

MRS. LELAND DID A MEDiterranean cruise, taking with her to see some of the world wonders a quot-debutante as well as a sub-debutante daughter. Miss Margaret Leland belongs with the 1926-7 girls, and I believe Miss Luisita makes the social entry next season. Mrs. Edward I. Emerson, of Boston, Gotham and Augusta, Ga., is about to arrive home, with her daughter, Miss Pelelope Potter. The Robert L. Raymonde return home after doing the popular Mediterranean cruise.

ELINOR GLYN ADOPTS "MOODY" COLOR SCHEME

New York, May 10 (AP)—Elinor Glyn's apartment has a color scheme based on her theory that one's moods respond to the vibrations of hues. For instance, the writing room is in turquoise; it makes the thoughts brilliant. Her secretary's room is the hue of the darkest part of the American Beauty rose, because the secretary is young and beautiful and should be surrounded by love.

Peggy Pays $4000

New York, May 10 (AP)—Having paid $4000 for a gift, Peggy Joyce is now able to ride around in her foreign car. The payment got it out of hock. It had been seized because the donor, John T. Locke, broker, owed money on it.

DIRECTORS PICK GIRL'S CHIEF ALLURE

Screen tests reveal smooth skin most important

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Dark or fair, piquant or classic, whatever her style, there is one thing every girl must possess if she hopes to become a star. This all important requisite is smooth skin. "The close-up is the final test of a screen star's popularity—and surest proof of her beauty," declares James Cruze, Pathé DeMille director. For this reason directors consider smooth skin—"studio skin"—even more necessary for success than gorgeous eyes or a fascinating mouth.

Nine out of ten movie stars in Hollywood are using Lux Toilet Soap for their priceless skin. This new soap is made by the celebrated method perfected by the French for the manufacture of their world famous toilet soaps. Jacqueline Logan, Pathé DeMille star, says: "The satin smoothness of my skin after Lux Toilet Soap is delightful."

All the big film studios have selected it as the official soap for their dressing rooms—an interesting comment on the value which they place on smooth skin. Lux Toilet Soap is manufactured by Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

little political excitement. It is quiet, because it is doing well.

The widow and daughter of Caruso visited his grave in Naples yesterday and looked on his face, well preserved by the embalming process.

Where is the spirit that moulded the face, and where is the voice that delighted the world? Are they united in another world, or has the sum of Caruso consciousness gone back to a cosmic ocean of thought, as water goes back to the ocean of H^2O?

Mr. Firestone, who makes tires and should know, says prices will drop 10 per cent. They may drop more. But don't wait. Spring, in the open air, is not a thing to be postponed.

Some day some maker of tires, well known, will sell his product by mail order, giving the consumer the benefit of the middle man's profit, now foolishly out of line. That tire maker will be the big tire maker.

Mussolini says everything is being done to encourage study of English in Italy's schools. The Italian ruler knows that it is important to understand the language of those that have the money, and the English-speaking races have it.

Slowly, English, modified through the centuries, more than it has been modified since Chaucer's day, will be the universal language. It is the best, because it is the most mixed, just as the most mixed races are the best.

The change, even outside of the semi-barbarous races, will take a long time, 10,000 years probably.

GETS JAIL TERM IN POLICE BRIBERY CASE

Charges of attempting to bribe a police officer drew two months in the House of Correction today in Waltham court for Benjamin Weiner, 66, of Columbia st., Cambridge, with an additional fine of $20 for peddling without a license. Weiner, according to Motorcycle Officer Devaney of Watertown, placed five $1 bills on the handlebars of Devaney's machine when he was told to show a license. He pleaded guilty, but promptly appealed and was held in $500.

'NEVER IN RUM TRADE,' SAYS PHINNEY

Maurice F. Phinney, Hyannis fish and real estate dealer, took the stand in self-defence in federal court today, where he and James Gillon, former prohibition agent, and Arthur Mann of Medford are on trial before Judge Elisha H. Brewster and a jury on liquor conspiracy charges.

Norman S. Cressy, former Hyannis chief of police; Fred McCabe, Charles Clark and Gus Andrews, all of Hyannis, have already pleaded guilty to the indictment in which Phinney was named.

In direct testimony, Phinney categorically denied all the statements made against him on the stand yesterday by Mrs. Hattie M. Cressy of Beverly, estranged wife of the ex-chief, and declared he had never been engaged in liquor transactions since taking up residence in Hyannis 15 years ago.

The government rested shortly before noon and Phinney will be taken in cross-examination by Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert C. Thompson during the afternoon session.

Last Hamilton Dividend

A fourth and final dividend to creditors of the Hamilton Mfg. Co. was authorized today by Judge Cox in Suffolk Superior court. According to the report of the receivers, holders of 36,000 shares will receive about 75 cents each on each share.

BANKER FOILS AN ABDUCTOR AFTER FIGHT

Washington, May 10 (AP)—Washington and Maryland police were co-operating in a search today for a youth believed to have been responsible for an attack last night on Leonard W. Kephart, Department of Agriculture Scientist, and an attempt to abduct E. Percival Wilson, bank official.

Kephart, left unconscious and stripped of most of his clothing after the attack, turned up later for treatment in Soldiers' Home hospital and this morning was taken to his home in nearby Takoma Park, Md.

Wilson frustrated his captor's efforts, whatever they may have been, by attacking him and gaining possession of his pistol after the man had driven him a mile away from the rear of his home in nearby Chevy Chase, Md. Wilson is secretary of the National Savings & Trust Company of this city.

Police believe the same man was responsible for both the attack and the strange holdup of Wilson because Kephart's automobile was used to spirit the bank official away.

Kephart was on his way to the Department of Agriculture to do some work on a scientific paper when held up and attacked in his auto.

Banker Wilson said he was held up in his garage by a man about 25 years old, who possessed a pistol in his ribs and ordered him to get in his car.

They drove about a mile down Connecticut ave. toward Chevy Chase lake, during which, Wilson said, he was forced to kneel down in the car. Believing the man wanted money, Wilson said he volunteered what funds he had, but the man refused, saying:

"This is going to be something new."

Stopping the car at the lake, the man ordered Wilson out. Thereupon the banker suddenly attacked the man and wrenched a pistol away from him. The man fled when disarmed.

DRY, CUSTOMS OFFICERS SEPARATED IN VERMONT

St. Albans, Vt., May 10 (AP)—The practice of using prohibition officers with the customs border patrol will be discontinued in the Vermont customs district, effective July 1, Collector Harry C. Whitehall announced today.

Hereafter none but customs officers will be used in the patrol work along the Canadian border. Heretofore prohibition men were assigned in conjunction with the customs officers and under their orders.

U. S. FLIERS NEAR DEATH IN LANDING AT NICARAGUA

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, May 10 (AP)—Two American fliers had a narrow escape from injury when their plane made a forced landing near La Luz mine, recently destroyed by rebels.

The fliers, Capt. L. D. Howard and Corp. Cole, were in an amphibian plane when forced down. The plane was damaged, but the engine and parts will be salvaged.

'DON'T AMERICANIZE GIRLS,' PLEADS ORGAN OF VATICAN

Rome, May 10 (AP)—"Don't Americanize young girls," pleads Osservatore Romano, Vatican organ, in reference to papal opposition to Fascist athletic drills. "Modern competitions of such nature among women come from Anglo-Saxonism."

Many good Used Cars driven only a few hundred miles are offered every day in Boston American Classified Ads. Call Liberty 4000.

A Story of Gay Life at Harvard

Gay Leonard, young, beautiful spoiled darling of fortune, is loved by Alan Pomeroy, an athletic, worthwhile young man. She is fascinated by Jerry Davis, of questionable reputation, and has been forbidden by her family to see him. Jerry meets Dolly Quinn, a shop girl by day and cabaret hostess in the evening. Gay calls him up, tells her inquisitive mother it is Alan she has been talking to and is going to meet him. Later Alan calls up and Mrs. Leonard learns that Gay has gone to Jerry's rooms and in a panic phones her husband. Gay finds another girl and a man with Jerry. The man relates Jerry's meeting with Dolly Quinn. After a good many drinks Jerry crushes Gay to him. She relies him about the dance hall girl and he admits he has never even ied to kiss her. Gay's father tells ry what he thinks of him and es Gay away. The family prepan to take her South.

By KATHERINE BRUSH

CHAPTER 10

GAY was alone. She was still sulking. Like a small furious boy in yellow silk pajamas, with yellow cropped hair much rumpled, she stalked through her rooms, kicking things out of her way, and occasionally even going out of her way to kick things.

"I won't!" she said again and again. "Damned if I will!" But she knew that she would. She had no choice.

Unless—

She halted finally before the sitting room mantel and from the regiment of photographs there displayed, chose one; the photograph of a last-summer's swain whom she had already forgotten almost everything. Without a glance at the physiognomy of this youth, she bore the picture to a chair and, sinking down, pried open the back of the frame.

It then appeared that the youth was not alone in his glory. He was, in fact, no more than a figurehead, a camouflage behind which Jerry Davis in sepia form was concealed from the eyes of the Enemy.

Gay took the likeness of Jerry in both hands and examined it at length. It was a stagy photograph, showing him seated on a window seat, his knees drawn up, his hands locked around them, his Grecian profile delinite against the light. It was also a battle-worn photograph, with a wide jagged scar across it's middle. Months ago, for her mother's benefit, Gay had torn it in halves, crosswise . . . Later she had retrieved the halves from the wastebasket and glued them tenderly together again.

She began to talk to the picture. "Know what they're doing to me, Jerry?" she asked it, and there were tears in her voice. "Dragging me down South—when I don't want to go—to get me away from you. And after that they're going to take me abroad, to keep me away from you. Till I get over it, they say! Little they know—"

She let the picture fall to her lap. She leaned back and closed her eyes, and the tears that her voice had threatened crept from under her lids and hung diamond-like on the dark curved lashes. Sentiment and self-pity assailed her, an overwhelming gust. "I can't go and leave him!" she whispered chokingly. "I love him so."

She stood up. Blindly, because everything was fluid through her tears, she made her way to the telephone. "I'll call him," she thought. "I'll just tell him—"

She was acting on impulse now, all caution thrown to the winds, all scruples lost.

Her voice faltered when she gave his number; she had to repeat it three times over. She dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief and sat waiting. Interminably. Her lips stirred, saying over soundlessly the things that she would say. "Jerry, I can't go. I can't. You love me, don't you Jerry? . . More than anybody, you said. You said that. You love me enough to—to marry me, don't you? So nobody can take me away from you—ever—"

"They don't answer," rasped the operator.

Pride returned with the morning.

Gay left New York without a second attempt to get in touch with Jerry. She left thinking of him angrily, with the stinging anger women feel toward men for whose sake they have made themselves fools in their own eyes. "His dance hall girl can have him!" she raged to herself. "I don't care. I don't want him!"

But through all the first hour in the Pullman drawing rom she wept dismally, dreadfully, and would not be consoled.

Dolly Quinn had a uniform. It was a bluish-gray uniform, consisting of brief skirt, tight basque bodice decorated with a double row of buttons, and little round pillbox hat, cocked over the eye, strapped under the chin. It made her look rather like a bellboy but quite adorable. She wore it six evenings a week.

The idea was originally Jerry's.

"I'm getting scared," he had said, "to make suggestions — you've knocked all I've made so far flat— but listen: why not usher in a theater? There's no bad job! I don't know what they pay, but the work is easy, the hours are short—home before midnight—just the thing for you! Does it appeal, or doesn't it?"

"It does." Dolly had answered dubiously, after reflection. "But I couldn't possibly manage it."

"Why couldn't you?"

"Well, what about matinees?"

Prolonged discussion.

"I'll see," Jerry had promised finally. "Maybe something can be done. A substitute or something. I'll find out."

He had been as good as his word.

MENACE OF UNWRAPPED CANDY IS SCORED

By DR. P. H. MULLOWNEY

Mothers, do not allow your little ones to buy unwrapped candy bearing no label of the manufacturer. In many cases this may be reprocessed candy which has been gathered from dubious sources.

Only too often it is the salvage of fire sales, or otherwise damaged candy stocks; the left-overs, the seconds, found in the stores once again in a new guise. The legitimate manufacturer has no use for this class of stuff. He has too much at stake.

He has expended too large an amount in establishing the quality of his particular brand to risk business ruin. It is at this point that the "second-hand candy man" comes into view.

Let us follow up the disposition of this class of what might properly be styled "questionable confectionery." In some cases it is dumped into large barrels and carted away to the factory. In the very nature of such things, do not look for any high standard of sanitation there.

DIRT IS PRESENT

It may be some dirty room, devoid of equipment for cleaning and sterilizing premises, utensils and apparatus. Here the contents of the barrels are dumped upon the floor and from there shovelled into large cauldrons for remelting. All goes into the pot, the candy and what ever is with it.

The discerning eye could detect the presence of dirt, hair, threads and stray nuts, but this means little to the unscrupulous worker. After a sufficient amount of processing the product is run out and wrapped up into large bars of chocolate candy. These bars have attractive designs that make a special appeal to children.

Of course you ask, how can such places exist with an adequate health inspection and control. Well, in the first place no license is required to conduct the business of candy manufacturing. There is a grave omission in the law here, one that the Boston Evening American will see corrected.

A license gives a great measure of control, with power to refuse and revoke.

IN HIDDEN PLACES

The under-cover candy man operates in the hidden places, in cellars and tenement attics. Driven from one place he may yet go to possibly a dirtier place more remote from official intervention. They are truly birds of prey, their victims the

KILLED IN CRASH

Lieut. Royal Thomas of the army, the man who broke Lindbergh's record of sustained flying, was crushed to death in an attempt at Teterboro (N. J.) field to smash his own record of more than 35 hours preparatory to a hop for Rome.

FREIDMAN TELLS HOW HE TRACED SHIP STEAL

Meyer Freidman, testifying in his own behalf in the Eastern Steamship Company case today, characterized himself as an efficiency investigator rather than a detective, but later admitted he was a "Peeping Tom."

Freidman, who is on trial in Suffolk Superior Court with Max Hessel, charged with larceny, conspiracy and extortion in connection with the theft of about $600,000 from the steamship company by its former auditor, George W. Gordon, made a general denial of all charges.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Francis A. Juggins, counsel for Hessel, and by Asst.Dist. Atty. Frederick A. Doyle, Freidman was questioned about his work investigating Gordon for the steamship company.

Asked by Atty. Juggins to define an efficiency investigator, Freidman replied he was a man capable of going into an organization and eliminating any source of loss. He declared he had worked for the Pullman Co., New York Central Lines, Pennsylvania Railroad, Tennessee Power & Light Co. and the Florida Power & Light Co.

For a time, Freidman said, he worked for a Boston real estate owner, managing apartments in the Fenway. He said he was an efficiency investigator in 1926 and in 1927 until he was apprehended by the police.

Freidman admitted he had no office and no telephone, and no one could reach him in a hurry. He also admitted in first, not Hassel when he went to the latter's place in Gordon said 'No.'

Broad st. to buy two quarts of liquor.

Asked if he rented tenements, Freidman replied: "No, I leased apartments."

He was questioned at length regarding a letter he wrote the steamship company, and asked where he got his information concerning Gordon's method of living. He said he could not recall, that it was common talk.

Questioned as to how he knew of a big wedding party at Gordon's apartment, Freidman said he looked in the window. It was then he admitted being a "Peeping Tom."

Freidman said he went to the Hotel Kenmore conference, mentioned in previous testimony, to "look over" Gordon and determine the type he was. He fixed the date as about December 9, 1926, at which time he received a check for $260 from the Eastern for looking up Gordon.

"I had been in touch with Max Hessell," he said, "to find out if Gordon was indulging in bootlegging. I told Hessell Gordon was being investigated. It was Hessel who called Gordon to the hotel.

"Max said: 'What are you doing down there at the steamship company?' Are you taking any money?' he went to the latter's place in Gordon said 'No.'

Baseball Plays New One Hit
50-Cent Bleachers

By NICK FLATLEY

NOW THE COLLEGIANS ELEVATE WRESTLING

GUS SONNENBERG, who wrassles Big Munn for the mat championship of the All-America tackles this p. m., is one of the most colorful athletes the pro sport racket has adopted in quite a stretch. Gus is as tough as a rhinoceros and as strong as a tired business man's midnight breath. He's a chunky, short young man, built along the lines of a baby tractor.

Nick Flatley

He gives away anything from 50 to a 100 pounds, and has been making the other boys like it. "I like 'em big," he explains. "Then they're slow and can't get away from me. The little guys have speed and they are tough."

Gus has speed, more speed, perhaps than anybody before brought into his present pastime. He has introduced football into the wrassling game, and his flying tackles have made him a big card. The former Green tackle just hurls 200 pounds of himself at the other fellow and the fearful war has been ending immediately after the jarring impact.

'Twill be interesting to watch what happens when Gus tries to tackle Mister Munn. Wayne was giving his all for dear old Nebraska, along about the time that Gus was all-Americaing for dear old Dartmouth. The boys will put on something like a two-man football game, and the toughest of the All-America tackles will emerge from the resin dust.

These two young men have been elevating the noble sport of the men mountains and it is quite possible that not a few boiled shirts will be seen here and there in the audience. If the wrasslers were not collegians that might disconcert them. But collegians are hard to disconcert, as the Cambridge police can testify.

Mister Sonnenberg admits that wrassling is the toughest game in the world, worse than selling automobiles on commission, which he tried after a hectic career in pro football.

"I have had 27 bouts in three months" Gus proffers, "and believe me, every one is a real job. It's harder than football ever thought of being. Even in the fiercest games, a fellow has a chance to get a breath now and then. But wrestling is hammer and tongs until the curtain falls down. But I've been in a lot of tough rackets and I like it."

Gus played football in the mining regions, where the boys take their sports seriously. He tells of playing with Pottsville against Coalville, when the fervent supporters of the two teams sprinkled $45,000 in bills on a betting blanket on the sidelines. The game was at Coalville, and when the invaders scored a couple of touchdowns in the third period, the populace stormed onto the field and put the game on the blink.

The visiting team had to go into a flying huddle and beat it, minus sweaters and blankets, for the railroad station. As they were pulling out on a special train, the windows were knocked loose by a rock barrage, and when the engineer hauled the outfit out of range, the playful Coalvillers started popping away with rifles.

That sort of a gentle youth should prepare a sturdy young man for any kind of a rugged career, if he lives.

LARDNER AND COHAN IN COMBINATION

RING LARDNER and George Cohan, who are in our midst putting on what seems to be the first successful baseball play ever produced, are two of the country's greatest baseball fans. That is, of course, the reason that "Post Company" has the real baseball flavor. Ring and George spend most of their summer afternoons in large league ball parks, though they are two of the busiest, more or less, young men in the land.

They doped it out that a game that has such a hold on the public was just naturally theater material. So they put their heads together. The tall Mister Lardner had the inside baseball knowledge and his own inimitable brand of sure-fire humor. The short Mister Cohan had the world's greatest sense of dramatic value and other things like that.

The combination produced something that will be a riot with every baseball fan, and at the same time packs enough entertainment and drama to hold the non-baseball section of the population, if any. That, at least, is the opinion of producers and other good judges of such things. Bill Corrigan of the Red Sox and Ray Schalk, manager of the White Sox, admit they could see that show every night for a month, and get a kick each time.

But the show business is more fickle than even the sport profession. Results are the only evidence of success. Nobody has come along yet who could dope the mind of the public for even a short section of the time.

GEORGE COHAN SEEMS TO BE MAKING GOOD AS QUICKLY WITH THE YANKEES (THE TEAM IN THE PLAY) AS ANDY COHEN DID WITH THE GIANTS.

COHAN FAVORS MORE 50-CENT BLEACHERS

GEORGE M., incidentally, is a great booster for more 50-cent bleachers in modern ball parks. Chances are he will be a magnate some day—he has the urge—and he surely will put his theory into practice.

"They should give the chap with little or no money more of a shot," he insists. "It's a national game, and the boy who can't kick in with a dollar should have as much chance as the fellow with the b. r. It has been my idea, always, that the theaters should have more 50-cent galleries, to make a play for the mob. Some day I hope to prove that notion is right. And I believe it can be done in baseball, too. Put the prices up on Saturdays and holidays, maybe, but give the 50-cent fans—and they're real fans—a chance the rest of the week.

BRAVES HOPE TO EVEN SERIES WITH REDS

Cincinnati, May 10—When the Braves get fairly good pitching they suddenly lose their punch in the attack. As a result of this combination the Tribe dropped the first engagement of the series to the Cincinnati Reds.

This afternoon Manager Jack Slattery hopes to combine some air tight pitching with some lusty clouting to even up the local series. The Reds are sleeping fast however, with their twirlers flashing mid-season ball. Eppa Rixey allowed the Braves four hits and one run, while his redleg brothers gathered nine hits and four runs off Joe Genewich.

Bob Smith is the logical Boston nominee for the mound this afternoon while the Reds are expected to use Dolph Luque.

One of the bright features from the Boston side in the opening clash here was the stout hitting of Capt. Rogers Hornsby. Hornsby gathered a triple and a single.

The Braves received a bad break when Dr. Eddie Farrell, the shortstop, was laid low with the flu. The veteran Jimmy Cooney is filling in the short field.

Olympic Soccer Team Off for Europe

New York, May 10 (INS)—The second contingent of the American Olympic team to sail for action in Europe in the 1928 Olympiad left New York this morning on the De Grasse. The soccer team consisted of 16 players, a manager and a coach.

"FIGHTING STUDENT" TO BOX JOE BURKE TONIGHT

Springfield, Ill., May 10 (AP)—Lee Marriner, University of Illinois student and professional heavyweight will attempt to score his twelfth knockout in thirteen attempts when he meets Joe Burke of Detroit in a ten-round bout tonight.

His last victim, Jackie Williams of Chicago, was knocked out after 30 seconds of fighting in the first round.

SOMERVILLE IS CONTENDER IN SUBURBAN

Somerville high's win over Cambridge Latin casts a large ray of hope in the suburban city, for it puts the Red and Blue team right up there in the league race. That homer of Millbury with a pair of his companions parked on the bases was a classic thump, and put the contest on ice. And once again Johnny Murphy showed his great ability on the mound.

Coach Dickerman's boys will now rest until Saturday, when they go to Newton to play that fine aggregation. The Somerville club was great in the Cantab game and if it continues in such style against Newton, has an even chance of beating the league leaders. In that event the Red and Blue will be right up there at the top, with a lot of hope of being able to win the title.

This afternoon Dorchester high goes to Everett to meet the Gilded group. Everett will probably hang up another win, though Dorchester should put up a good fight.

On the morrow Boston College high goes to Milton high, and ought to defeat that club. Art McManus and his charges unexpectedly beaten by Jamaica Plain the other day, and will have the boys on edge to wipe out the memory of that loss in the next few games. Capt. Louis Biggi's English high team rides to Wakefield high at Roslindale, and the game ought to be one of the good ones of the day.

A strong Lynn Classical team goes to Chelsea to face that high school, and should win the ball game, but not without a fight. Burlington high plays Malden high at Woburn this afternoon, though Dorchester should put up a good fight.

A strong Lynn Classical team goes to Chelsea to face that high school, and should win the ball game, but not without a fight. Burlington high plays Malden high at Woburn this afternoon and Everett at Melrose. Tomorrow Malden high plays again at the Tufts field courts. There has been quite a bit of tennis this season, and we may expect that game to take a boost during this and the next few years. There are a whole lot of youngsters who don't get a chance to indulge in interscholastic competition in any other game and, consequently, miss a lot of benefit, physical and mental, which results from this active competition in sport.

On the cinders this afternoon Dr. Will Clinton runs at Lexington, and Quincy high races at Concord. Tomorrow the New Hampshire fresh squad goes to meet the Brown fresh team, and Quincy has its second meet in two days, when the boys run at Milton Academy.

Coach Holland's Mechanics Arts track team has several big meets to come. On Saturday the team competes in the Boston College interscholastic; May 21 and May 23 the boys will run against Latin in a dual meet; May 28, 29 and 31 will see the squad at the Regimental relays; and on June 9 the team will conclude the season at the Fields Corner track.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"If Bob Quinn of the Red Sox were making an inventory today, he could write $50,000 after the name of Ed Morris, rookie pitcher who has tagged the Athletics and White Sox with defeats," chirped Mr. Boston today. "It is likely that Morris' value will be increased to $100,000 by October.

"Morris, like most of the stars of the game, didn't ride into the big league on the wave of any extensive ballyhoo. He was just a pitcher with Mobile in the Southern League last season. Six feet two inches tall and 185 pounds he won enough ball games to attract the attention of the Red Sox scouts. The result was he was sent to the spring training camp at Bradenton.

"Down in Florida, Morris was looked upon as a rough, tough kid who was almost certain to be shipped back to the bushes. It is said that Morris himself was among those who figured he was not destined to last in the big show.

"Bill Carrigan thought otherwise. You see, Bill has a way of his own with young pitchers. He picked up Babe Ruth, Dutch Leonard, Buck O'Brien, Ernie Shore and a flock of others when they were in the rough and molded them into great pitchers.

"The fact Morris was considered somewhat fresh in certain quarters only tended to make Carrigan like him better. He decided to turn all of Ed's surplus energy into the proper channel.

"Nobody ever accused Babe Ruth of following any Sunday school set of rules. He had pep enough to play ball and do a lot of other things during 24 hours. Carrigan never believed a manager could change human nature entirely. All he tried to do was to govern it. A free rein with a slight check-up now and then has always been the Carrigan system.

"So when Morris showed plenty of spirit in the South he made a hit with Carrigan without knowing it. Bill then started to study a way by which he could chain up all of that surplus energy.

"One day during the training season Morris was batted rather freely. He was prepared to hide himself away in a corner when Carrigan came up to him in the lobby of the hotel and invited him to dinner.

"That's another trick of Bill's. If a pitcher wins, he does not even see the manager, but when he loses Carrigan extends to him a dinner invitation. The pitcher then forgets all about his bad day and the next time out pitches his head off for Bill and the Red Sox.

"I HAVE always contended that no ball club was ever a bit stronger than its pitching staff. Now and then we have exceptions such as the Yankees, but as a rule a team must have a flock of star flingers if it is to get into one of those world's series clashes.

"I believe Carrigan has the knowledge and patience necessary to bring out the best that is in the young Red Sox hurlers.

"It is only a little more than a year since Bill took charge of things at Fenway Park, and already the Sox are beginning to show signs of life.

"The acquisition of Gerber helped a lot. He's a first class shortstop and will equal some of the feats of fellows like Parent, Wagner and Scott. I have a feeling that the Red Sox are going some place after all."

Red Sox Pressing Senators in Race

Bill Carrigan is trying to sell his Red Sox some aviation ideas. He thinks they should prepare to go up, play hustling baseball, and climb over several more clubs. The fact that the Sox scrambled out of the cellar has made William ambitious, and he will probably transfer his enthusiasm to his athletes.

The Sox have a good chance, if they continue to play the brand of ball they have shown for the past fortnight, to get up somewhere near the race. They will only have to pick up a game and a half to scramble over the Senators, who have been the season's worst flop. Then they are a mere matter of three games behind the Detroit Tigers, who haven't been doing so well, either.

If the Sox can get up at the top of the second division, Bob Quinn will be forced to stick up new bleachers in left field, where fire cleaned the stands out two years ago. The crowds this year have been large and optimistic, considering the weather, and the brand of Red Sox baseball has made many a friend.

Tuesday's rest was very welcome to the injury-ridden Chicago team, but Bill Carrigan didn't like it a bit. He delayed the postponement till the last possible minute, but finally had to surrender. He will squeeze in the two games left in this Chi series, if there's any kind of a chance.

Manager Ray Schalk admits that things have been very tough for his ball club, but thinks the sun is about to start shining. His pitching ace, Ted Lyons, reported back in much better shape than Ray had hoped for, and Al Thomas, his other mound hero, is just about ready to be himself again. A couple of real pitchers will make quite a difference with that Chicago ball club, which has everything else.

Danny MacFayden was due to work for the natives, while Ted Blankenship was in line for the allen assignment. Ted has had a bad side, but the injury has been pronounced cured by the club trainer.

YANKS SETTING FASTER PACE THAN IN 1927

New York, May 10 (INS)—The New York Yankees have been setting a faster pace this season than during the early days of the 1927 American League race, despite the fact that they were out of first place for some time this spring.

The champions have won fifteen of their first twenty games this season. In their first twenty starts last year they won twelve games, lost seven and tied one.

Cornell Crews Are Headed for Boston

Ithaca, N. Y., May 10—Twenty-eight Cornell oarsmen left Ithaca for Boston to take part on Saturday, in the triangular regatta with Harvard and M. I. T.

The crew squad is one of the youngest boasted at Ithaca in years. All three Cornell eights are appearing at Cambridge for the first time in competition any with one or two exceptions none of the oarsmen has had the experience at racing.

DYNAMITE GUS SONNENBERG BATTLES MUNN

Plenty of Action Expected When Former Gridiron Heroes Clash on Mat Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

GUS SONNENBERG and Wayne Munn, all-American tackles on the late Walter Camp's mythical football teams, will oppose each other for the first time tonight.

The match between these sturdy athletes will take place on the mat in a finish wrestling bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena, instead of upon the gridiron.

Jack Conway

Sonnenberg played football at Dartmouth and the University of Detroit, while Munn starred for Nebraska. Were playing football memories of both Sonnenberg and Munn never used.

Munn was the first of the two to enter the wrestling game. He took up this sport after an injury had put a crimp in his football career. He quit his job as a steel worker and, weighing 250 pounds, stepped on the mat.

Munn's first pro fight. He did not do as well as he had hoped, but after a while once more was found on the road.

Munn started to wrestling. He did well at this sport. He quickly got himself in position to challenge Strangler Lewis for the title held by Ed Don George, Lewis looked upon the match as a sort of setup.

Munn, a powerful young man, has a fine physique, has arms and legs like trees and a body that is a mass of muscles. Lewis didn't think he would be a champion.

Munn lost the championship to Lewis in December, Lewis proved his best tactics when he defeated Sarazen at St. Louis last May.

SONNENBERG has been wrestling even more sensationally than Munn did when the latter blazed his way to glory. He has carried football tactics into the mat world. His fighting ability has enabled him to shock many into hearts of his opponents. He has tipped them over before they had got warmed up.

The thing that has made Sonnenberg dangerous? It is a good manager, has a fine mat dangerous skills, and I have ever seen. He has a fine attack is good for a minutes. When he grips an opponent the latter feels as though he is held in a vise.

Sonnenberg does not carry a rival around for hours in preparation for the bout. He works so speedily that the opponents will be entertained for only a few minutes before Gus has finished him. They get a great deal for quite a while. Actors can work for long drawn out battles.

Gus has never the Dempsey punch in wrestling. It should serve as an excellent tonic for the game.

THERE will be a dozen or so preliminary contests at the Arena tonight to see Sonnenberg do his stuff. They will be supported by several thousand football fans among whom practically every day mat fans. Promoter Bowser looks for one of the largest crowds of the season. The public is wise to the mat bout and everything is sure to happen when a couple of young huskies like Sonnenberg and Munn get down to trying each other's holds.

The winner of tonight's skirmish will be in an excellent position to take a few pot shots at Strangler Lewis. Even the champion wouldn't mind seeing Munn or Sonnenberg trouncing him up.

Tune in on the usual bangup preliminary card

Central Has Chance to Capture Title

By BILL GRIMES

Unless The Country Club breaks Central's winning streak at Clyde Park today, the champions will practically clinch the Women's Golf Association of Boston team match championship for the third consecutive year.

The Central District has an unbroken string of six victories, not losing a match since the opening at Wollaston, where it was nosed out 5 to 0 by Southern. Since the upset at Wollaston every team in the league has fallen before Central and Midland has twice been defeated by the champions

In the first Country Club-Central match, which was played at Weston, the titleholders were retained 3 to 2 winner, Mrs. F. Read Eddison and Miss Alden Stone being the only Clyde Parkers up at the finish of their matches. Central will use practically the same lineup that has been paving all season, but The Country Club is far stronger than it was at Weston

While The Country Club is trying to stay in the race by defeating Central, the Northern and Southern districts which are tied with the Brookline team for second place will be playing Midland and Brae Burn, respectively.

The Northern District will meet Midland at Kernwood and if the team is playing the golf it did against Brae Burn at Winchester on Monday, there is but little chance of a Midland victory. Midland got off to a good start but has slumped badly in recent matches and out of the running.

The Brae Burn team will entertain Southern, whose unexpected defeat last Monday by The Country Club will not work out to the advantage of the Newton team. Although Southern has played its quota of matches with Central, getting an even break, the team will fight it out to the end. Brae Burn has been off form all season, winning but one match in seven, a creditable come-down after being the runner up last year.

Martha Lee Tells of Meats

By MARTHA LEE

DO you know that spring always is also a high "ill health" rate? There are many colds and losing ill from a sufficient dining this point not only by the child, but adult.

Martha Lee.

Some years a was would ... been advised to resort to medical attention after the illness was complete. But this year let us join the "prevention" rather than the "cure" league.

Since it is [illegible] mother must bear the direct responsibility of the health of the members of her family, it is certainly to make a study of the type of foods and conditions that will assist her family in coming through the trying spring months' illnesses.

The meat organs, heart, liver, tongue, kidney, brain, especially liver and kidney, have been declared by our leading nutrition scientists to be blood-building foods.

These meats are all highly palatable in fact, delicious when cooked properly, relatively inexpensive considering their high food value, and particularly acceptable at this time of year. Liver and sweetbreads with bacon, broiled, or pigs feet with [illegible] are delicious.

Many [illegible] simply in cold water previous [illegible] tough meats and some cuts in small dice and cook with cold water for fifteen minutes. Drain and cover with boiling water and let simmer for three hours or [illegible] Drain and pour it before using. It holds [illegible] cover tightly and allow to [illegible] slowly. If cooking a beef heart two pieces of slow cooking will be required.

If baking in an uncovered pan, baste every 15 minutes. When heart is tender, remove it from the roasting pan and thicken the remaining liquid to serve as gravy, seasoning it well with salt and pepper. Bake pork hearts about [illegible]

Correct Manners Explained

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

For a small, informal home wedding, what kind of invitations should be sent and should one be sent to every member of the family?

2. Would an informal note write to the bride be all right or should it be inscribed to friends not present at the ceremony?

3. Is [illegible] correct? J. S.

FOR such an informal wedding a [illegible] note or the [illegible] would be in order. And [illegible] is in no event form. When such invitations are written [illegible] one puts a stamp [illegible] it is also all the members of the family. For instance, write a note to the mother, [illegible] brothers of the bride, and in the [illegible] that you would like to have Mr. Hastings and Mr. Reed and Jack come, too."

2. Yes. Although if the list of friends is a large one it will [illegible] easily more convenient to have engraved announcements.

3. Your paper is not especially good looking and is quite sure enough, I think, for such important invitations as I [illegible] mention. Do you like the one-sheet paper? I believe that if you buy the conventional [illegible] bit better texture, you will be happier about writing your "significant" notes [illegible] double sheet, and get paper of a [illegible] quality.

A CHAPPING FROCK FOR THE GROWING GIRL

Adventure and Romance Amid Scenes of Almost Barbaric Splendor

CHAPTER 21

ON arriving at the Mpondis of the Okelleys I could soon see that great havoc had occurred on account of marauding elephants and gorillas besides other animals. One rascal paid them nocturnal visits and was supposed to be the most dangerous of all the animal visitors.

The native hunters then told me that the next unwelcome customer was a very large old gorilla who was likewise greatly to be feared, as he had already charged a party of men who had followed him to his home about two hours distant and had been heard giving voice and drumming at dawn. They thought there would be a good chance of getting him that morning and we wound our way along the creek to the place mentioned.

I was told to take a stand beside an old fallen tree, as he generally passed that spot if disturbed. If he came their way they would surely have him for the damage he had done to their plantations. I took the stand with my faithful head boy and from where we were we could see the Okelly four in number lying prone in the bush at the edge of the clearing.

We waited for some time, but could see or hear no sound indicating his whereabouts. I was just about to give up the gorilla chase and try my luck at spooring the rascal elephant when there was a sound of a rolling stone reached us from over the creek and once in a while we could get a glimpse of his head and shoulders as he showed up above the round large boulders.

Presently he rolled over one of these large stones and he was busily engaged breakfasting on the large insects which were under the rocks. Having satisfied himself with this kind of tidbit he peered around and, thinking the coast was clear, he walked cautiously toward an oil peanut clearing and as he came up within about 20 yards of where the native hunters were concealed he seemed to suddenly hear something, out of the way.

The Okellys now fired on him, but instead of scampering away as he was only slightly wounded, he made a bound on them, using his arms. One man and gun he sent fully 10 feet high in the air and played havoc with the others, scattering them with a slap of his arms, while one of them, gaining his feet, was knocked sideways again.

On his return he rattled through the bush to the right of us still going strong, but we had lost the tracker, who eventually appeared, telling us that the elephant was badly wounded, as his slides were shortening and he would no doubt make for the river crossing.

As the undergrowth became more open we could travel faster, but my luck was out, as I ran slap into a small wood borer's nest which was hanging from the branch of a tree. I was knocked senseless for the hunt, as I was badly stung over the face and neck and back and was forced to fight a battle royal with my hat.

At this point Trader Horn pauses to make a few remarks on certain resemblances between cannibal tribes and civilized people

"Talk of history, those cannibal tribes were just as particular as we are about their food. They all like a small wood borer's nest when it is hanging from the branch of a tree. I was knocked senseless for the hunt, as I was badly stung over the face and neck and back and was forced to fight a battle royal with my hat.

Final Bid 1 N.T. Played by Auth

THE BIDDING

North, with double stopper in Hearts adversely bid and stoppers in Spades and Diamonds, bids No Trump on the strength of his partner's original club bid.

THE PLAY

Trick 1. East's 9 denying a higher card, West passes, permitting Declarer to win the trick.

Trick 2. Assured that Declarer has the King still guarded as East's card showed less than four Hearts, West leads the 10 to clear the suit and obtain command of it.

Trick 3. North holds the Club and Declarer is assured of 10 tricks on the hand.

Trick 6. Pause of the Clubs to break leads to Declarer's shift to Diamonds as a game possibility if West can be shut out from making a Hearts trick. This can be taken in Diamonds.

Trick 7. Last holding another lead puts West in and Declarer is set to his contract.

Sad Story of the Returning Banker

Recently I heard a sad story, or at least what I thought was sad. Here it is:

A noted banker was returning from New York to his native home after an absence of eight years. Upon alighting from the train he was somewhat downcast to notice that there were none of his old friends to greet him. Remembering the station master, who had been a friend since childhood, he hurried in to greet him. Just as he was about to speak, the station master said: "Hello, John, going some place?"

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND.

THIS is the dangerous season when a man's conscience goes on strike and his heart, pulse and vanity begin working overtime.

A man is never actually old, until he has lost his last desire for the food that makes him dyspeptic, the pleasures that make him poor, and the women who make a fool of him.

It takes a crack real estate salesman to draw such a tempting picture of a bungalow that even a modern bachelor is inspired to rush right out and look for a garden rake and a wife.

After a man has silenced his conscience toward his wife a few times, it just lies down like Fido, goes to sleep and never troubles him again.

If it were as difficult to get married as it is to get a pre-war drink, marriage certificates would become the craze of the hour. Since the Anti-Saloon League has made drinking so popular and fashionable, why not start an "Anti-Marriage League" to give an impetus to matrimony?

The average man is like a clock: once you get him wound up and started in any direction, you can't STOP him until he either runs down or get a violent jolt.

A solution of one part flattery to two parts sweet indifference makes an ideal thermos bottle in which to keep a man's love from growing cold.

At this insidious time of year, a man is almost afraid to PRETEND that he is in love—for fear he may convince himself.

Never take love lightly—nor a spring-time lover seriously.

A man never actually discovers that he is in love until he wakes up some morning and suddenly finds that he is dependent upon some woman for everything from understanding and companionship to his amusements and the bicarbonate of soda.

Somehow, nothing so inspires a man with the spirit of research as to tell him that a woman is "dangerous."

This is the time of year when the thought of no woman can keep a man awake nights like the thought of going fishing.

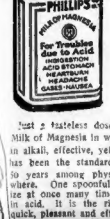
Sour Stomach

Sweetened instantly



Just a tasteless dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in water. That is all alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 70 years among physicians everywhere. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

Don't depend on crude methods. Employ the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

Here's the Way to Heal Rupture

A Marvelous Self-Home-Treatment That Anyone Can Use on Any Rupture, Large or Small

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY

There is no longer any doubt but what the plan used by Capt. Collings is the only way to completely heal rupture without any operation.

And it costs you nothing to try it.

If you are ruptured, no matter how bad or how long, send your name and address to Capt. W. A. Collings, Inc., 6918 Collings Bldg., Watertown, N. Y., and try free the wonderful invention that healed him of the worst two ruptures you ever heard of. He threw away his truss; never had to wear it again. His two large ruptures that had kept him bedridden for years, were both held naturally by his own muscles without support of any kind. It was a marvelous cure of rupture, and you can have a free trial of his wonderful home treatment by merely sending name and address, no charge whatever. Don't fail to send for this free trial. It is so simple, wonderful.

PIMPLES LASTED OVER A YEAR

Very Hard and Small, Face Was Affected, Cuticura Healed.

"My face was affected with pimples. They were very hard and quite small, and scaled over. My face was very itchy and caused me to scratch. Scratching caused little eruptions which made me very uncomfortable. The trouble lasted for over a year.

"I used many other remedies but they did not help me. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased more, which completely healed the trouble." (Signed) Miss Rose Steinberg, 7 Walnut Park Rd., Roxbury, Mass.

Use Cuticura Soap daily for the toilet, assisted by Cuticura Ointment when required, and have a clear, fresh complexion. See from pimples and blackheads.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura, Dept. 20, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Soap (25c) and Ointment (25 and 50c) sold everywhere. Cuticura Talcum (25c).

Headaches?

The next time your head aches—from any cause—just take a tablet of Bayer Aspirin and see how soon the pain is all gone. It is absolutely harmless, else physicians wouldn't say to use it; and it does not affect the heart.

All druggists have genuine Bayer Aspirin, in the box that says Bayer—with the word genuine in red letters!

Lay-Off by Standard Oil, N. J., Conducted Humanely

By B. C. FORBES

New York, May 10.—When lay-offs are found unavoidable in our city it was conducted as considerately and humanely as possible.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, showed very clearly in the following letter to this column—the first part of his statement was given yesterday—that there was no open whatsoever for any complaint made by a party aggrieved by James B. Furber, a New Jersey lawyer. Indeed, the steps devised by Mr. Teagle might well be pondered by other corporation executives.

B. C. Forbes

Writes Mr. Teagle:

"While there may be individual cases of hardship, does it not appeal to you as equitable and fair that we should keep the men of longer service and those with full-time work, and allow the men of shorter service to seek full-time positions elsewhere?

"Humanity should be the first consideration in business, but would the interests of humanity generally be advanced if manufacturing operations were conducted on an uneconomical basis such as Mr. Furber suggests? Is not the efficient operation of business more likely to produce general wealth and improve the position of all labor than would be an attempt to obtain a temporary gain for a few by a lowering of industrial system by keeping men employed irrespective of the economic result?

"In laying off these men—which was unavoidable—a great deal of consideration was actually shown. They were given as much notice as was possible, and when the age, service with the company, and physical condition of a man warranted special treatment, he received an amount of money. Many of them were members of our stock acquisition plan, under which they received in cash or the company's funds for every dollar they had invested in our stock.

"Mr. Furber refers to Mr. Rockefeller's Christianity and asks how it can be reconciled to inhumanity for the payment of exorbitant salaries and dividends on standard stocks. There is nothing to do with Mr. Rockefeller's attitude toward life, and I have the infinite respect for it. He holds a relatively small percentage of the stock of this company, and there are 65,000 other shareholders who pay this directors to administer the property for them. It is our duty to carry out this trust as faithfully and efficiently as our powers permit, and if there is any aspect of our administrations which is open to criticism, it is certainly not that we have sacrificed the interests of our employes to benefit the owners of the business.

"In seven years the total annual dividends paid have been equivalent to only 2.6 per cent on the amount of our invested capital, which is a most extravagant rate equal to that of the majority of other industrial concerns.

"You are aware of the intense competition which exists in the petroleum industry and that we have only a small fraction of a cent a gallon on a product in excess of billions of gallons. The cost of our various plants for the welfare of our employes may be just that fraction of a cent a gallon, and it, to that extent, affects our ability to meet the competition of those whose costs or operations do not include such plans as ours. It is obvious that in addition to this we could not load our competition with the extra cost of paying men for whom we have no work.

"Your correspondent asks why it is necessary that the present generation of working people should suffer from economic conditions. I should like to ask him what he has in mind as an alternative.

"From the beginning of time man has had to struggle for existence. It was basic in the Creator's scheme that man should achieve comforts by the sweat of his brow. There have been no hardships, had the human race been cradled in a land of milk and honey, it would long ago perished.

"This country, notably, has made remarkable progress and today has millions of well-clothed, well-fed, well-clad workers; but, of course, this condition is not universal. It cannot be so long as there are men disinclined to use their brains and brawn to secure their own needs or industry. The parasite, the whiner, who feels that the world owes him a living without a quid pro quo, is always with us. The fact to be proud of is that the number of deserving cases forced to undergo hardship and want is extremely small. It is much smaller here in the United States than in the great experiment of state socialism has been made.

TIPSTERS ARE SURPRISED BY SUCCESS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Many stock market tipsters are amazed by their own success. They needn't be. Practically the entire "big list" has moved upward during the past year, and the man who could pick the way it went naturally is entitled to qualify as a "better guesser" than the man who could not. But strong guessers, as I suppose you, perhaps, if you study the list of ten most active stocks after each session, will soon begin to suspect are apt to find therein issues that are either below or but slightly above the prices at which they sold a month ago.

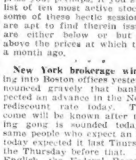
New York brokerage wires coming into Boston offices yesterday announced gravely that bankers expected an advance in the New York rediscount rate today. The outcome will be known after the closing gong is sounded today. The same people who expect an advance expected it last Thursday and also the Thursday before that. In plain English, the Federal Reserve folk have kept them guessing.

* * *

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., made his visit to Boston this week as quietly as the multimillionaire, George F.



President Small J. D. Rockefeller, Jr.

Baker. A lot of people think the very rich go around ostentatiously. Experienced bond salesmen who meet a great many people with a good deal of money, will tell you that it is bad business to attempt to judge people by the display they make or by their lack of display.

Attention was called in this column months ago to the tendency to call bond issues. The purpose of calling bond issues is usually to go refunding at lower money rates. The volume of called bonds is tremendous. President Charles E. Small, Maine-born head of the Old American Life Co., heads the latest corporation to take advantage of easy money. American Ice Co. directors authorize issuance of $8,000,000 bond issue, in $1,000 and $500 debentures. Proceeds are to be used to refund the $14,000 issue of 6 per cent general mortgage bonds and other underlying issues.

William C. Durant, former Boston "auto wizard" and "Father of General Motors," simply continues to bob out of the news. The New York papers carry a story of Mr. Durant's buying and selling operations. The orders shot by cable from Paris. The significance is not too plain.

Mr. Durant does not make his market operations public. He never did. Rarely a gentleman of great intelligence it is hardly to be expected that he would let everyone know just what he is doing. One big New York operator, the story runs, got an order to buy 20,000 shares of a certain stock. The people who gave him the order at the same time sold about 75,000 shares through other brokers. The story further runs that the broker was "hooked" with big block of shares well above the market when he decided to do a little buying on his own account.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds you should have unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, financial editor, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. No replies can be made except by mail.

GOODWIN WILL LEAD DRIVE FOR SAFER HIGHWAYS

can for lending its great power and influence to lessen the sorrow and suffering in our homes.

"After serving eight years as registrar of motor vehicles I realize the necessity of any intensive campaign for safety and consider it a duty to do what I can to help the Boston Evening American in its great work.

"Very truly yours,

(Signed) Frank A. Goodwin."

That is the big and humane spirit in which our former registrar of motor vehicles takes up the fight for the mothers and children and every citizen in New England in the effort to check the auto peril.

As head of the motor registration department of Massachusetts, Goodwin by his aggressiveness, vision, unflagging interest in the welfare of the public, his fearlessness and ability, became a national figure and authority.

READ GOODWIN'S WARNINGS

The Boston Evening American is proud and happy to enlist the services of a man of such high standing as Goodwin and to give its readers the benefit of his experiences and address which will be of significance that has come to be one of the most appalling problems in modern life.

Evan, remember that you in New England will profit by Goodwin's warnings, suggestions and observations which will be published daily exclusively in the Boston Evening American.

No mother or father, pedestrian or motorist, can afford to miss them. His timely counsel may save your life, that of some member of your household, or of your friend or neighbor.

Every mail brings stacks of letters containing "Mothers' Safety Don'ts," but the Highway Safety Editor is anxious for more. He wants every mother in New England to take an active interest in a campaign that aims to safeguard the life and limb of children.

EXTRA MONEY

Remember that your chance is as good as that of any mother to win one of the 78 cash prizes to be awarded for the best code of 10 "Mother's Safety Don'ts." Earn money for a vacation or a new spring hat or dress and at the same time boost a cause that may save your own children from death or injury.

The highway safety editor will tell you later of the splendid endorsement given the mothers' safety campaign by Dr. Jeremiah E. Burke, superintendent of the Boston public schools and of the generous support given by the school and the police authorities. It's the kind of a drive that appeals to every one, the kind that strikes right at the cockles of the heart.

Let us hear more from the mothers today.

Mrs. Beatrice C. Carpenter of 337 Huntington ave., Boston, writes:

"Enclosed please find my list of ten "Don'ts" for children. As I am the mother of four, I know how important this Safety Drive is.

Here on Huntington ave., where we live, my youngest boy has to take the car each day for school and I have long intended to write to Mr. Parker in regard to the dangers of this part of the city.

A DAILY RISK

"It is a daily risk—boarding a car—the autoists are ruthless— drive too close up to a car, no one place one has to stand while waiting for a car.

"You are doing a splendid work. All good wishes."

Mrs. Ellen Goodridge of 1096 Forest ave., Portland, Me.:

"I am sure this enclosed 10 "Mothers' Safety Don'ts" have worked well with me or any other mother who has paid attention to them. I have children—ages 20, 16, 15, 13 and four."

Mrs. Estella Gardiner of 21 Gainsboro st., Boston:

"Regarding the reason for my selecting the accompanying" 10 for children, would say that I have read of accidents to children caused by neglecting to keep these rules and I am the mother of twins, aged seven years."

A MOTHER'S EXPERIENCE

Mrs. Thelma Chandler of 1192 North Union st., Rockland:

"I am the mother of three girls, Audrey Margaret Chandler, Catherine Emma Chandler, 5, and Lynwood Irene Chandler, 4.

"I hope lots of mothers will go by the rules that are sent in from many. It is very hard to watch children when you live right on a main street that there is a lot of traffic on.

"I have had the feeling of picking up my child from under a truck right in my own yard. That is why I put number Don't. Only a miracle and God saved her."

Mrs. Chandler's No. 10 Don't reads: "Don't when the coal truck comes in your yard run out to it."

Mrs. Josephine Smith of 53 Hudson st., Boston:

"I am the mother of five children. I wouldn't have anything happen to them for all the money and machines in the whole world.

"If drivers of automobiles will be careful and look for the safety of children there wouldn't be so many accidents. The little ones have got to go out. As a mother I always try to look for the coming machines. That will help all of us. My children's ages run from 16 to four. They are Flora,

Joseph, Elmer and Sammy.

Mrs. Ethel Eddy of 112 Belle ave., Fulton Heights, Medford:

"These are the Don'ts I am teaching my little girl. She will be four, June 30. She is very careful. When she sees a truck or a car she will warn other children who have not been taught. I really think if mothers would warn their children at all times there wouldn't be so many accidents. Hope these Don't will help someone."

weakest and most unsuspecting of humans, the little children.

Where do they expose their wares for sale? At every advantageous spot that catches the eye of the boy or girl eager to spend the penny.

The public has at least one immediate step it may take in self-protection, and that is non-patronage. If a general movement could be started, having as its object the establishment of a high standard of cand

BETTY BRONSON IN LINDSEY STORY FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, May 10—Hollywood has been fine-tooth combed to find two players who were young enough, modern enough and attractive enough to play in Judge Lindsey's "Companionate Marriage." The choice has narrowed down to Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Betty Bronson, who yesterday were officially chosen for the two leading parts by Asher, Small and Co.

Long, long ago when Betty was making "Peter Pan" and young Doug was investing in his first tuxedo, these two children used to go to the theater together in New York and see a great deal of each other. A romance was even hinted.

Now they are both grown up. Betty has been to Europe and had met some of the literary brains of the continent and young Doug has fallen in love with Joan Crawford.

Monta Bell, who directed Betty in "The Bellamy Trial," is at the moment entering into negotiations with Asher. He will direct the translation of the Lindsey idea, directorially speaking.

"THE JEST" is always mentioned in superlative language as a play that did much for both John and Lionel Barrymore. Every time the Barrymores have been discussed as screen stars someone has ventured a opinion that Sam Bischoff "The Jest" should be filmed. Well, it's going to be filmed but not with the two Barrymores.

Clifford B. Hawley, president of First National, who is in Los Angeles at this moment, has let it be known that his company has purchased 'La Cena Belle Beffe' and it was from this story that the American stage play was adapted. While no mention of a cast is made, Hawley does say that it will be filmed in London.

SALLY O'NEIL always felt if she had a chance to play in a Griffith picture she could prove that she was able to emote with the best of 'em. Acting for D. W. gives those players a standing that nothing else seems to do. Now Sally is sure her hunch is right. Mr. Griffith has engaged her to play the lead in "The Girl on the Barge."

Universal thinks pretty well of D. W.'s judgment since he handled Mary Pickford so successfully in "Dorma of Love." Jean Hersholt, also a member of "The Battle of the Sexes," plays one of the principal roles in "The Girl on the Barge," which is to be filmed between Albany and Buffalo on a canal boat.

Sally, Hersholt and Edward Sloman, the director, are now together and maybe you think Sally isn't excited.

IF Nils Asther can be spared from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer there is a nice design trip in the offing. Dr. Ludwig Berger, who returns to Berlin to make "Don Juan" and "Cassanova" for UFA, wants Nils Asther for the stellar role but Louis B. Mayer, it happen to know, has other plans for the young Swedish star.

After he finishes playing opposite Marion Davies there is a Greta Garbo picture. And then Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer owns the rights to another "Cassanova" film made by a French company. If M. G. M. is wise they will hurry and release it before UFA furnishes competition.

MARIE DRESSLER, who has been nursing a sprained back and trying to get rid of a bad attack of tonsilitis, is on her way to New York. She will sail for Europe for a trip on the other side, returning to pictures in the autumn. Miss Dressler is one who can be privileged to know Marie Dressler realizes how much good she does.

She is one of the women who sponsored the American Women's Association, formed by Ann Morgan to help working girls with their problems. She also calls Ruth Morgan, Miss Dressler will assist Miss Morgan in a tea dansant given to aid this cause. According to Miss Dressler, who has made a study of sociology, there are 147 vocations for women.

JAMES HALL with the grimy face and pair of hands that matched, explained his appearance by saying that he had been piloting an airplane. I must have looked incredulous for he went on to say that he and Ben Lyon drove an aeroplane 20 miles every day to the field where "Hell's Angels" is still in progress.

"When the pilot finally inquired Bebe Daniels on whose set we were chatting, and I expect to be so old by the time the picture is completed," he said, "that we will have to be cast as old men."

MARION DAVIES and Robert Leonard are staging a reunion at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Bob directed Marion in "The Restless Sex" years ago and now he is handling the megaphone for her in "Her Cardboard Lover."

"Maybe you think she hasn't improved," she said. "She almost took me off my feet the way she understands timing her comedy and putting over her scenes." "He has improved, too," replied Miss Davies. I guess they are both right. That is one of the things that practice does for all of us, or should do, make us better.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Ralph Forbes saying a visit to Beatrice Davies' set. Frances Marion's pretty niece, Carolyn Bishop, playing an extra in Marion's picture. She refuses to discuss her reported engagement to Gene Tunney. Mike Cohen threatening to sue Mike Jacobs during the intermission at the ringside. Tracey Monday night. Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks walking up and down the alley. Dorothy Sebastian lovely in a bunch of orchids on her shoulder. Lina Rubens trying to locate her sister Gertrude Olmstead and Robert Leonard entertaining a supper party at the Montmartre. That's all.

LINDY DATE TIP FOR BIRTHDAY LETTERS

If the boy whose birthday falls on May 20 is glad because on that date Lindy started his famous flight to Paris, there must be hundreds of other boys, and girls, who have equally good reasons for honoring their birthdays.

Have you sent in your reason to the Birthday Editor? If not, why not? Remember that a good letter wins the privilege of being the guest of the Boston Evening American at a performance in Loew's State Theater.

It isn't a contest, but simply a test of good letter-writing. And there are only two rules to remember when writing—that you must not be more than 16 years old, and that your letter must be mailed within the week which ends on your birthday.

Now, boys and girls, that's easy. So sit down now and write that letter giving just one reason why you are glad of your birth date. Address Birthday Editor, Boston Evening American, 3 Winthrop sq., Boston.

SCHOONER'S CREW OF 23 SAVED ON GRAND BANKS

Twenty-three men comprising the officers and crew of the French fishing schooner Marie Edmee were rescued on the Grand Banks of Newfoundland according to a message from the Coast Guard Cutter Modoc received at Washington headquarters today.

Sixteen of the crew were saved by the S.S. Swansea, out of Boston, and 17 by the French fishing boat Flora.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

George Gould Built a Fine House

Now Many Good Girls Enjoy It

Men build magnificent estates with beautiful houses for their own pleasure and their families. The rich man dies, the family scatters, and then sometimes the house becomes REALLY useful.

George J. Gould built such a house, Georgian Court, at Lakewood, N. J., a beautiful residence, with a great park around it, sunken gardens, an indoor riding and tennis court, several polo fields, private golf links, stables for a hundred horses and a pine forest. That house, grounds and park are devoted now to a school for girls, known as Georgian Court College.

One of the big stables has been changed into a chemical laboratory and into schoolrooms of various kinds, with a big dormitory above. Where George Gould entertained polo men from Long Island, playing on his fields in the milder Lakewood climate before the Long Island fields were ready, Mother Mary John, head of Georgian Court College, presides over the faculty and directs the studies of more than a hundred intelligent young American women.

On Sunday last the girls gave a concert for their friends, interesting because of talent shown by the girls, and especially because it demonstrated thorough, efficient teaching.

It would have interested George Gould to hear that concert, with the college girls and their friends assembled in the building that once had a tanbark floor for the exercising of his polo ponies in winter.

Tschaikowsky's "March Slav" was played by girls at six pianos.

In the Gounod-Schubert Harp Ensemble "Ave Maria" sixteen girls took part, eight playing the harp, six playing the piano, and two the violin.

If George Gould could have heard that music last Sunday in his indoor riding ring, and especially Liszt's "Rhapsody Twelfth" played by six girls at six pianos, he would have been delighted to see his great estate so well used. He was a kind-hearted man, tried to make his own children happy and liked to see other children happy.

It would have given him satisfaction to know that the beautiful estate to which he and his wife, Edith Kingdon Gould, devoted so much time is now preserved for the benefit and healthful education of American girls, instead of being cut up into building lots.

Georgian Court College, while managed by the Sisters of Mercy, welcomes girls of all religious beliefs. Parents interested in a school that combines the mild winter climate of Lakewood with proximity to New York City, its concerts, museums, and other opportunities, may write to Mother Mary John, Lakewood, New Jersey.

Those who believe that music is the best nourishment for mind and soul will congratulate Sister Beatrice, who directs admirably the music education of the girls of Georgian Court.

Try Fencing, Young Ladies

Strengthening, Beautifying, It Develops Every Muscle

GERMANY'S CHAMPION FENCING GIRL

The picture above shows well developed, graceful Fraulein Helene Mayer, Germany's champion female fencer. She sets a good example to some American girls, always wondering how they can get thin and keep thin.

Fencing, in youth, while the heart is strong, is the best of all exercises.

Fencing develops speed in eye and muscles. It develops the muscles without EXCESSIVE development. Notice the SLENDER arms and legs of this charming German girl, and her perfect UNIFORM development. Her muscles are like silk cords, her movements with the foil swift and sure. She represents PERFECT development without any EXCESSIVE development.

There ought to be more schools for fencing, and more girls ought to take up fencing. It keeps the figure in good condition without the starvation methods that impoverish the blood, cheating the next generation when the girl becomes a mother.

If there were one fencing academy for every hundred

EVOLUTION IS GOING ON TODAY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MOST of us think of evolution entirely in terms of the past.

It is usually discussed as a method by which the world was formed or mankind was created, or a theory of whether or not we descended from an ape.

It is hardly ever discussed in terms of the future. What will man become? What kind of a creature will man be 10,000 years from now? Will he probably be as superior to us as we are ahead of the cave man?

Horace Bushnell, in his memorable address on "The Power of an Endless Life," showed the amazing possibilities of the effect of cumulative years upon a growing organism, such as man.

Dr. R. A. Milliken, who discovered the "cosmic ray," which has since been called the Milliken ray, in a remarkable address the other day referred to the radio active processes of the world by which heavier atoms are being disintegrated into lighter ones. In other words, somewhere in the universe there is a building-up process going on to replace the tearing-down process represented by radio activity.

Dr. Milliken's experiments constitute the first discovery of evidence which warrants the belief that there is continuous creation.

That there is destruction and that there is death and dissolution are well-known facts.

We are now facing the new fact that there is constant creation!

Evolution is a slow process. Its field lies perhaps in that sub-microscopic world of atoms and electrons. Now that we are beginning to peer a little into the mysteries of that world, we are coming upon a law of tremendous importance.

And this law is that man not only stands now at the summit of created things, but that all evolution is going forward.

Man is improving. By his increase of knowledge he is adapting himself more and more for this terrestrial habitat.

Life in any case remains a mystery, but the most remarkable thing about life is not its cessation but its quality of resurgence. Every spring brings with it the upspringing and newness of life.

John Fiske said that the essential quality of man is his improveableness. That quality is emphasized by this new aspect of continuous evolution.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"WHAT is it all for?" she asks wearily.

You've asked that, too, thousands of times as you also went "with dragging feet" to a tiresome daily task.

Dear Miss Robinson:—

I am a working girl who, like thousands of others, goes with dragging feet to the office every morning, exists during the day and escapes at closing time to LIVE the intervening hours until the next day repeats the performance. We do the thing we do not like to do to make money which will support us so we can go on doing the thing we do not like to do. And we call that life!

I admit there are many girls who like their work but there are multitudes of us who do not. We have no one dependent on us and in a way we are free, but we have no source of income to fall back on while preparing for something which we do want to do. What's the purpose in our life—what's it all for?

LAURA MARLES.

What's it all for—what's the purpose in life?

Life, itself, is the real purpose in life. And living, itself, is the goal of living.

"But this sort of existence isn't living!" you cry.

Yes, it is. It is as much living as any other sort of life stuff. IT IS YOUR ATTITUDE WHICH IS WRONG, NOT YOUR JOB. You can, if you wish, make that job or any other job rich and alluring if you have the right attitude. And there is no job on earth which will give you content if you haven't the right attitude.

I am presuming that you, like most of us, are an ordinary person with no great artistic or professional bent. Of course, if you're not—if you have some definite talent, you can cultivate that talent outside of office hours as others have done. The most famous people have done their climbing after a daily grind. But you, probably, have no definite talent. You're simply sick of your job and you go to it resentfully, feeling that it's a waste of life. It isn't. You may live those eight hours with the passion of a great artist, if you wish.

Through your office, Laura—through your kitchen, Mary—flows the drama of life as truly as through the studio of the artist or the study of the writer. Great geniuses do not have to lead different lives, but they do have to see things with different eyes. You, too, can cultivate different eyes. You can develop your imagination and humor and curiosity until you, too, acquire a talent—A TALENT FOR LIVING.

And that is the fundamental thing in any human career. Without the talent for living all other talents will prove profitless. With that talent, the simplest experience will yield adventure, and however humble our work we may know the joy and pride of the creator. For the man who translates the common stuff of life into drama is as truly a great genius as the man who works with paint and paper. Indeed I think he is the greatest of all geniuses.

Look for drama and you will find it, Laura. You will find it in the face of the man who washes your office windows, in the bent back of the woman who cleans your floors, in the weary eyes of your boss. And, once having found it, you may follow it on and on. There is no door closed to the one who has the Seeing Eye.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 10.—Several New York city editors have been running a temperature the past few months over press agent hoaxes. Three extremely plausible stories streamed across first pages, only to be discovered as canards the next day.

Each was so cleverly "planted" it seemed air tight, and even grizzled veterans of the copy desk passed them without a suspicious stiff. One concerned a doubtful daughter of a fallen royal house, another a dawn suicide of a dancer in a Central Park lake, and the other a night club battle.

Despite the fact that press agency of this kind has absolutely no box-office value, producers of plays and movies still pay fancy sums to suave gentlemen to perpetrate them. A press agent is said to have averaged $50,000 a year for many years, executing these absurdities.

One concerned a patron of a hotel binging a lion to his apartment in a piano box and registering as "T. R. Zann." Several weeks later a film called "Tarzan" was shown on Broadway. The connection was so remote it is possible not a person who read the press yarn was inspired to see the film.

Yet it cost the exhibitors a snug fortune to put over the fakery. There are a few flimsy laws to protect newspapers against this hocus pocus, but newspapers do not want to confess being victimized by such twaddle and so nothing is ever done.

Press agents of this ilk are those without literary skill. They cannot write a line that would pass muster, but are ingenious in rigging up situations that invite journalistic inspection.

There is an organization among press agents, composed of more earnest members of the guild, which frowns on such didoes, but to no avail. It would seem that it will take a prison jolt to end the flimflaming, and newspapers are now working for just that.

AMONG famous press agent connections are the Anna Held milk bath and the tan-bark carpeted street to deaden noises for Mrs. Pat Campbell. There was no attempt to be wily. The facts were presented to newspapers as stunts, and were thus acted upon in a semi-humorous vein and are still talked about. Had they been achieved by trickery they would have likely died aborning.

OVER a speak-easy bar with five bartenders on duty in 47th st. is a sign: "Running one year full blast without a raid!" Next thing we know they'll be shouting: "Bring the kiddies."

A NEW YORK husband arrived home three mornings in a week after 4 a. m. His wife told him it happened the fourth time she would be difficult to find. It happened. Three weeks later he learned through private detectives she was in Honolulu. The remedy was effective. He is permanently cured. That is, if she will just come back.

NOTHING quite so confounds a philandering husband as the discovery his wife doesn't give a hoot. It is the hazards that offer zest to philandering, and, there once removed, the philanderer is more likely than not to sneak back to the carpet slippers and turn on the radio.

ANOTHER GERMAN GIRL—AFTER-THE-WAR STYLE

lipstick stores, it would be a good thing for the women of this period.

You will notice that Fraulein Helene does NOT bob her hair; THAT'S PLEASANT FOR A CHANGE.

The second tall, charming creature represents the new generation of German girls, the kind that grew up after the war.

As far as the eye can reach, there seems to be no signs here of during-the-war starvation.

This athletic German girl would please the artistic eye, and a good many other eyes, and set Heinrich Heine, if he were alive, to writing verses rapidly.

Artists would be interested in the length of the body, as compared with the length of the head from chin to forehead. That comparison is important. Venus de Milo is the perfect sample of right proportions.

You will notice also the perfectly straight, well developed legs, and the sensible hips that have not been starved. They retain sufficient vitality to enable this girl to be a good German MOTHER later, not a washed-out wisp, like some foolish American girls.

The shoes, we are bound to say, do not go with the costume. Probably on this occasion the fine German girl was just dressed up to be photographed. So excuse the shoes, which are not what you might call athletic.
